Dollar Up, Prices Down.
Everything Regulated.
But Dollars Are Few.
Simon Bolivar, Liberator.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE DOLLAR continues to rise, in the world's exchange markets, and prices of stocks and other things continue to go down.

Little Wall street "lambs," who prematurely decided that their time had come, continue to wish that they hadn't prematurely decided.

Gen. Johnson, who looks after things for President Roosevelt, had warned speculators that they were going ahead too fast.

TODAY, President Roosevelt formally calls upon employers to co-operate in the regulations of working days, hours and pay, with different minimum wages set for the white collar workers and the other workers. It is clear that some definite plan must be adopted.

If prices of commodities are forced up without creating payrolls to make possible buying at the higher prices, there must be trouble.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT takes for allies, American women, who do the buying, in his campaign for better pay and better business methods.

Women are asked not to buy from shops that do not display a government badge showing membership in the National Recovery Administration.

The badge will contain a blue eagle, the letters N. R. A. and the words:

"We do our part."

That sign means that no children under sixteen are employed, that the "short week" is observed, that the owner has raised wages, that white collar workers work only forty hours a week and others only thirty-five hours.

The government badge, of course, doesn't say anything about the profits of the store or how the owner is going to make ends meet.

PRIME MINISTER BENNETT, of Canada, says:

"If President Roosevelt wants to save the world he will close the New York Stock Exchange."

Whether that would save the world is uncertain; it certainly wouldn't please brokers. Yesterday they sold 9,570,000 shares.

ONE OF our little troubles appears to be that going off the gold basis made our dollar cheaper, and stimulated speculation, without any visible increase in the number of dollars.

Banks are not lending, they still remember when they were all closed and many concentrate on collecting what they have lent already.

If it were not for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which does put money in circulation in certain directions, we might have something more to worry us.

A fine water supply does you no good, if it doesn't flow through the pipes.

IN MISSOURI, local police, assisted by agents of the federal government, have gathered in six, supposed to have kidnaped August Luer. A small hole in the ground in which the 77-year-old banker was hidden, half smothered, has also been found. The interesting question is now:

"What will be DONE with the six kidnapers, one of whom, an ex-convict, has confessed, implicating the others?"

Missouri justice has an opportunity to make it clear that the state of Missouri does not approve of kidnaping.

ON MONDAY next, the world will celebrate the 150th anniversary of the birth of Simon Bolivar to whom South America owes freedom from European control, as this nation owes its freedom to George Washington.

South America and the cause of human liberty owe eternal gratitude to Bolivar and to Venezuela, the land of his birth.

Gen. Bolivar lived only 47 years, and history presents no life more crowded with acts of courage and useful devotion to liberty.

"Is South America ripe for independence from Spain?"

To this question Humboldt answered "Yes," and to young Bolivar's question, "Is there any man living capable of freeing South America from Spain?" Humboldt replied, "No."

EX-MAYOR KLINE DIES

CHARLES HOWARD KLINE . . . DEATH CAME AT ST. FRANCIS

STROKE FATAL TO POLITICAL CHIEFTAIN

Unconscious since he was stricken by a paralytic stroke Thursday night, former Mayor Charles H. Kline died at 5:35 a. m. today in St. Francis Hospital.

According to Dr. S. H. Johnson, brother-in-law of the former political chieftain, the condition of the former Mayor, who resigned from office to escape a jail sentence for malfeasance in office, became worse during the night.

Dr. Johnson said Mrs. Kline was not at the bedside of her husband when the end came. She visited him last night, he said.

Kline's illness was apparently due to an aggravation of the complications which were disclosed just before he resigned March 29, according to Dr. Johnson.

The body was removed from the hospital early today to the mortuary of T. B. Moreland in Highland avenue. While no arrangements for the funeral have been made, it is probable the services will be held from the Moreland funeral home.

The former Mayor was stricken while a guest at the home of Dr. Johnson, in Gross street. Since his resignation he had been in seclusion, dividing his time between his home in Park Mansions and Madison Golf Lakeland, O.

END PEACEFUL

The end was peaceful, Dr. Johnson said.

Owing to the critical illness of the former Mayor, two staff doctors of St. Francis Hospital and a nurse were in constant attendance.

While the doctors said he rallied slightly during the early part of the night, at 4 a. m. today his condition became noticeably weaker. Dr. Johnson was summoned from his home. Examination of the stricken man disclosed that death was not far off.

DEATH HASTENED

The end came four months after he stepped from his public career—a career both brilliant and spectacular—to avoid a jail sentence.

WILEY POST RACING TO N. Y. ON FINAL GLOBE FLIGHT HOP

EDMONTON, July 22.—(AP.)—Wiley Post, Oklahoma roun-the-world flier, hopped off for New York on the last leg of his trip at 10:41 a. m., Pittsburgh time, today.

He had stayed in Edmonton only 1 hour and 34 minutes to refuel his ship, the Winnie Mae, and to get a brief rest after flying overnight from Fairbanks, Alaska.

When he left Edmonton he was 20 hours and 12 minutes ahead of the record he set with Harold Gatty in 1931. Their elapsed time together when they took off here was 193 hours, 43 minutes. His time alone was 173 hours, 31 minutes.

He was determined to do the 2,200 miles to New York in one hop.

Post completed the 1,450-mile leg from Fairbanks, Alaska, to Edmonton in 9 hours and 22 minutes, he arrived here at 9:07 a. m. (Pittsburgh time), and declared that he would press on to New York as soon as his gas tanks had been filled. He determined to make the final lap in one flight.

He was not hungry and he did not wish to sleep. He said:

"I just want to get going."

MOLLISON AND WIFE HEAD OVER ATLANTIC

BULLETIN.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 22.—(AP.)—The plane in which Jim and Amy Mollison took off for the United States today passed between Fastnet Rock and the Cork mainland at 9:20 a. m. (Pittsburgh time) today.

PENDINE, Wales, July 22.—(AP.)—The famous flying Mollisons, Jim and Amy, took off this morning for New York on an ambitious adventure in which they hoped to fly to Bagdad after crossing the Atlantic twice.

In contrast to stormy weather that caused their plane, the two-motored "Seafarer," to crash on the first takeoff attempt June 8, the weather was acceptable as the plane took the air at 11 a. m. Greenwich time (7 a. m. Pittsburgh time).

They planned to reach New York Sunday night and after a short rest to cross the ocean once more, seeking a distance non-stop record.

Capt. James A. Mollison, who made the first solo east-to-west flight over the Atlantic last August, watched the final arrangements being made and saw to it that everything was shipshape.

He said:

"This may be my last spec-

4,000 SEE JOLSON 'SOCK' WINCHELL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 22.—(AP.)—Walter Winchell, gossip columnist from New York, took it on the button from Al Jolson last night.

Among the things the columnist never knew until now (he said so!) is the way the actor can punch ambidextrously, although Winchell insists that when Jolson mauled him at the Hollywood Legion Stadium boxing show he was helped by another guy.

Four thousand persons saw the brawl and 4,000 versions were existant today, but the fact remains that Jolson hit Winchell because he didn't like him, because he resented things Winchell had put in

BUCS, GIANTS CLASH IN DOUBLEHEADER

FORBES FIELD, July 22.—The home of the Pirates held a crowd of holiday proportions this afternoon as the Pirates and New York Giants tangled in the first game of a doubleheader. The dual fight was to end a gripping series of six games, the contenders having split even in the four battles to date.

Manager Gibson had Heinie Meine and Larry French ready for slab action in the doubleheader. Boss Terry, of the invading host, was ready to counter with Carl Hubbell and Fred Fitzsimmons or Watson Clark.

The first-place Giants had a lead of four games on the top position when the fun started. The Pirates will play two games with the Cincinnati Reds at Cincinnati tomorrow.

YANKS BEAT BRITONS IN CUP NET DOUBLES

AUTEUIL, France, July 22.—America's hopes of meeting France in the Davis Cup challenge round here next week were kept alive today when George Lott and John Van Ryn, United States doubles team, defeated Fred Perry and George Patrick Hughes, of England, 8-6, 6-4 6-1, in the third match of the inter-zone final series.

As a result of the defeats sustained by Ellsworth Vines, Jr., and Wilmer Allison in singles yesterday, the outcome of today's duel left the Britons with a lead of 2 to 1 in matches. Vines must defeat Perry and Allison must conquer Bunny Austin in the concluding singles tomorrow if America is to escape elimination.

Lott and Van Ryn, after trailing at 1-4 in the first set, gathered speed and power as the match progressed, and Hughes and Perry were completely outclassed in the latter stages of the battles.

PITTSBURGH ENLISTS IN RECOVERY DRIVE

The National Recovery Administration has asked the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce to organize the business and civic organizations of Pittsburgh in a campaign to restore economic security.

The Chamber has agreed to form the committee.

A telegram, sent to the chamber by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, asks immediate organization of all important elements in the community in a campaign of education and organization designed to speed the return of prosperity through the expansion of consumer purchasing power.

The organization of the Pittsburgh campaign committee will begin at once, according to Frank C. Harper, secretary-manager of the chamber.

STOCKS STEM NEW WAVE OF LIQUIDATION

BULLETIN.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Closing prices of stock exchange leaders today were: United States Steel, $52.25, off 25 cents; Bethlehem Steel, $32.50, off 50 cents; American Can, $83.50, off 75 cents; American Radiator, $19, up $5.75; American Telephone, $119.50, off 50 cents; General Electric, $22.75, off 50 cents; Westinghouse, $40.50, up 25 cents.

Sales approximated 4,800,000 shares.

NEW YORK, July 22.—(INS.)—While showing rallying tendencies after yesterday's late rebound from the lows, the stock market continued to stagger today under the flood of forced selling from impaired margin accounts loosed by the collapse of the speculative bubble in the last three days but managed to close fairly steady.

The opening saw quick rebound. This ran to more than 6 points in National Distillers and 1 to 3 points in the general list.

Selling was still in enormous volume, however, and this helped prevent any appreciable gains generally.

Cotton snapped back $1 a bale at the opening and then crashed $2 a bale. Wheat opened lower in Winnipeg and then fell 11 cents a bushel before support appeared while rye also slumped sensationally, losing 14½ cents a bushel.

The stock market fluctuated in a wide range under alternate waves of buying and selling. The lateness of the ticker continued to make it impossible to follow the transactions, the tape trailing hopelessly right from the opening.

The New York Stock Exchange announced today that beginning Monday it would open at noon until further notice. The action was taken to give member firms and the stock clearing corporation a chance to catch up with their work.

The governing committee of the exchange will decide next week whether to close the exchange for next Saturday.

The Curb market and the Philadelphia Stock Exchange followed the "big board" in the noon opening order.

Chinese Here Fear Tong Warfare

Business in Pittsburgh's Chinatown was at a standstill today, as news of a tong flare in Boston reached here. Excited groups met behind closed doors.

The head of the merchant tong told his members nation-wide trouble might be looming, and to be careful at night because dark shadows hide killers who get $1,000 a head for the "big shots" and $350 a head for the "little shots." If trouble flared here it was expected to be between tongs on Third avenue and tongs on Second avenue.

ELLIOTT, RUTH READY FOR SYLVAN WEDDING

BURLINGTON, Ia., July 22.—(INS.)—All details were completed today and the stage set for the marriage of Elliott Roosevelt, 22-year-old son of the President, to Miss Ruth Googins, Fort Worth (Tex.) society girl, at sundown on a sylvan bluff overlooking the broad Mississippi.

The ceremony is to be held in the spacious garden at River Crest, the beautiful home of George C. Swiler, an uncle of the pretty dark-haired Texas girl. An improvised altar has been arranged under the towering elms of the Swiler estate.

Still refusing to admit that he will be married, the strapping second son of President Roosevelt arrived here from Chicago shortly before midnight last night.

Police guards have been asked for the Swiler estate for this afternoon and evening, it was announced by Harvey Jaeger, superintendent of public safety, who added that no newspaper men, photographers or the curious public would be allowed to enter the grounds.

Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, sister of Elliott, is expected to be the bride's attendant.

Miss Googins has maintained a strict silence since her arrival here two days ago from Chicago, whence she complained she was driven by the "fanfare of publicity." Elliott flew to Chicago from Reno to join her immediately after he was divorced in Nevada last Monday from Elizabeth Donner Roosevelt.

SUCCOP IN JAIL CELL GRIEVES FOR KLINE

Col. Bertram L. Succop, convicted of malfeasance in office with Mayor Charles H. Kline, was informed of the death of the former mayor in his cell in Allegheny County Jail early today by Warden John McNeil.

Warden McNeil said Col. Succop appeared overcome by grief and quoted him as saying:

"I am very sorry to hear this sad news. Mayor Kline was a fine type of man, one of the finest men I ever met in public life. Now that death has called, the many good deeds and great accomplishments of his career are revived with an appreciation of his many fine qualities. I believe the public will now appreciate just how fine a man their mayor was. Appreciation often is delayed until death brings a proper realization of true values.

"I sincerely believe and hope from this time forward political animosities will be forgotten and the late Mayor will be properly appreciated."

Succop, former supplies director of Pittsburgh, who was asked to resign by the former Mayor a few weeks after the investigation of city purchases started, is serving a year's sentence in the county jail following his conviction with his former boss. Succop's application for pardon is pending with the Pardon Board.

WHOLE CITY SHOCKED BY DEATH OF KLINE

Mayor John S. Herron on being informed this morning of the death of ex-Mayor Kline said.

"I was shocked and unprepared for the sad news of the death of Mr. Kline. I knew that he was not a well man, but was not prepared for this sudden end. My sympathy goes out to Mrs. Kline in this hour of her bereavement."

Councilman P. J. McArdle:

"I regret former Mayor Kline's sudden passing away and I have the deepest sympathy for Mrs. Kline."

Councilman Clifford B. Connelley:

"I regret very much the death of ex-Mayor Kline. As a judge, citizen and city official he gave the very best he could. It is regrettable indeed that he suffered as he did. He will be missed in many circles."

Council William J. Soost:

"Although I knew that former Mayor Kline was not in the best of health, his sudden death this morning surprised and saddened

600 'LIEUTENANTS' TO PUSH RECOVERY DRIVE TO VICTORY

6 MILLION NEW JOBS BY FALL SET AS GOAL

'Squawks' Will Guide Course of Action For Johnson

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and Hugh S. Johnson today began selecting 600 lieutenants to impel toward victory their unprecedented peacetime program for putting at least 6,000,000 idle to work by September.

Both were said to be highly pleased by first public reaction toward their scheme, under which around 5,000,000 employers would sign agreements with the President to increase pay and put more people to work by shortening the hours of those now employed.

A further molding of public opinion behind the plan is looked for when President Roosevelt on Monday night outlines it to the nation. He will speak over a nation-wide radio hookup at 10:30 p. m., Pittsburgh time.

RECOVERY BOARDS OF 7

The next immediate step which began today, is the selection of recovery boards of seven in each of the Commerce Department's 24 districts and of additional boards of nine in each state. These units will advise federal headquarters on progress, and help the campaign.

Johnson meanwhile said he plans no exhaustive set of regulations governing application of the presidential agreements which will reach every employer through the mails on July 27.

"We'll administer this through the squawks."

That's what Johnson told newspapermen while seated at his desk where there were a number of national recovery administration posters bearing the eagle seal and the words: "We Do Our Part."

Non-Union Operators Preparing Coal Code

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP.)—The widely differing wage and labor proposals for the bituminous coal industry are congealing into definite shape for presentation at the formal hearings before the Industrial Recovery Administration.

Non-union operators from fields reaching from Central Pennsylvania to Tennessee expect to submit a code sometime next week calling for the open shop, a 40-hour maximum work week, and a minimum basic wage scale understood to be about $4 in the North with a 40-cent differential for the South.

The United Mine Workers of America want a 30-hour week and a $5 basic scale. The union is opposed to the open shop.

Union operators from 14 states, most of them in the central region and the West, have submitted a code providing for the $5 day, with a 25-cent differential for the South, and a 36-hour week.

Will It Be An Equal Race? -:- By QUIN HALL

a movie scenario reflecting disparagingly—Jolson said—on Ruby Keeler. And he resented that because Ruby Keeler is Mrs. Al Jolson.

Here's the story:

The actor and his actress wife were among the customers of the boxing show when Winchell came in, heading for his ringside seat right near the Jolsons. Miss Keeler, shy, dark-eyed and appealing, suddenly saw Winchell and began to cry.

MEETS OTHER FIST

Jolson looked around and spotted the columnist. With one movement he got up and swung on Winchell's chin. Winchell sat down without further ado, but he didn't take the count. He was game, but his judgment was bad. As he came up he met Jolson's other fist, and down Winchell went a second time.

The spectators, by now standing on their seats to see a fight not carded on the evening's entertainment, lost count of the knockdowns at this point. Jolson said afterward he had floored the self-announced Broadway tattler several times, while Winchell related later:

"He hit me in the back of the neck. And there were two of them—two guys hit me."

Impromptu referees disagreed. Sports writers and others, including Detective Lieut. "Lefty" James, of the Los Angeles Police Department, put it in the record that Jolson stood squarely before his man and swung from the heels—fairly, squarely and very, very fast.

SCENARIO CAUSE OF IT ALL

Anyway, to get back to Miss Keeler, Winchell had just finished a scenario for a leading Hollywood film factory purporting—so it was said—to depict the lives of two persons very much like Mr. and Mrs. Al Jolson.

Winchell said the scenario is "about a gangster and a chorus girl, but it's not about Jolson and his wife."

Miss Keeler, averred Jolson, was treated very badly, being identified in the script with gangsters, bootleggers and the like. Miss Keeler, he said further, cried for days after learning the nature of the projected story, and when he saw Winchell he saw red at the same time. Jolson said:

"I just up and popped him. I hit Winchell several times, and I know I knocked him down at least twice. I didn't hit him very hard, either."

WINCHELL'S VERSION

But Winchell sat through the boxing show with apparent enjoyment, and when he left he was flanked by two huskies. His dressing room version of the encounter was:

"A bunch of gorillas hired by a major studio were supposed to have been at the fight last night to give me a shellacking. But they didn't show.

"True, the scenario Jolson took exception to is about a gangster and a chorus girl, but it's not about Jolson and his wife. Jolson assumed (will you have them italicize that?) that it was about his wife. And it was pure assumption.

"Jolson hit me once, and that was on the side of the neck. The guy who sent me down hit me from behind, and I know who it was and who hired him to do it."

CARRY FEUD TO WILL HAYS

Jolson said he would attempt to halt production of the Winchell picture. He said he would lay the matter before Will Hays, czar of moviedom, today.

Evidently the fight, in spite of the knockdowns, was a draw, for Winchell receipted for nods from friends and Jolson got an ovation as he left the stadium. Winchell, jaunty, self-possessed and little the worse for assault outside the ropes, said:

27 SEIZED HERE IN 3 RAIDS

Twenty-seven persons, including nine women, were arrested by police in raids on three alleged disorderly houses in Tunnel street last night.

At 41 Tunnel street, police reported arresting Fay Allison, 24, on a charge of keeping a disorderly house and eight women on charges of visiting.

Frank Marks, 23, was arrested at 49 Tunnel street, where a small quantity of moonshine was seized. Four visitors also were arrested. Twelve men and the alleged proprietor, Tony Cantafio, 29, were reported arrested at 55 Tunnel street.

AUTO SMASHES POLE, 4 HURT

Four persons were injured seriously early today, police reported, when David King, 28, of 1025 North Highland avenue, lost control of his automobile on the Ardmore boulevard.

The car veered onto trolley tracks dividing the boulevard, rode the tracks, then crashed into a pole, severing it at the base.

Marion Renner, of Hill avenue, Wilkinsburg, was pinned under the demolished car. The other occupants were Mr. and Mrs. M. McNeely, 1423 Severn avenue. The party was returning from Ligonier.

All were taken to Columbia Hospital by E. A. McFadden, of Greensburg.

The nature of their injuries was not disclosed by the hospital. Police said a man and a woman suffered fractures of both legs.

PENNSYLVANIA INDUSTRIES RAISE PAY

One Firm Announces $360,000 Increase In Payroll

Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, largest independent steel producer in the Pittsburgh district, today announced that salaries of office workers have been advanced 15 per cent. The increase is made effective as of July 16.

This follows similar action taken by subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corporation and other independent companies.

By the Associated Press.

Rosy tints show far and wide today in the clouds which have been hanging over industrial Pennsylvania.

Police clashed with workers in Pottsville last night and with strikers in Philadelphia and Bristol yesterday, but most of the overnight developments concerned pay increases or negotiations for improved working conditions.

Officials and representatives of the 2,200 employes of the New York Shipbuilding Company on the Delaware River, agreed to make the minimum wage for common labor 40 cents an hour. Skilled labor will be paid at the prevailing 1929 rates with a maximum week of 40 hours.

Executives of Sears Roebuck and Company sent a telegram from Philadelphia to President Roosevelt promising to sign the President's re-employment agreement "at the earliest opportunity."

1,227 CASES GO OFF RELIEF

The relief burden in Allegheny County has dropped below the 70,000 case mark, according to a report by the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Board.

A decrease of 1,227 cases for the week ending July 15 carried the total case load down to 69,351, a statement from the office of Director George P. Mills shows.

Re-employment in the basic industries of the county, steel and coal, are held largely responsible for the decrease. Many of the families going off relief have written letters of thanks to headquarters.

The relief load reached a peak May 22 when 75,126 families were on the rolls.

OREGON VOTES FOR REPEAL

Associated Press.

Oregon took her place today with states approving repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, thereby making it 20 to 0 in favor of blotting national prohibition from he Constitution.

The far western state, on an incomplete count of ballots cast yesterday, was giving repeal a lead of more than 22,000.

Multnomah County (Portland) voted approximately three to one for repeal. Outside Multnomah County the vote was about four to three for repeal. Oregon voted state prohibition in 1915.

In Tennessee, which voted Thursday, the repeal lead had narrowed to less than 9,000. Dry leaders, charging fraud, threatened to contest the result.

The Governor of Colorado has decided to call a special legislative session to provide for a vote on prohibition September 5. This means that at least 36 states, the number required to amend the Constitution, will have passed on the repeal proposal before the end of the year.

JUDGE URGES CHURCHGOERS USE VOTE

Majority, Not Minority Should Elect Mayor, Gray Tells Rally

With outspoken and fiery speechmaking, the first non-partisan meeting of the Independent Republican-Democratic organization of the Fifteenth Ward was held last night at the Greenfield School.

Judge James H. Gray made the opening speech, saying he was "engaged in an enterprise" to get every man who goes to church to vote this fall. He continued:

"The minority rules us here—the last mayor was elected by a minority. We must have a majority election so that we can know that a cross section of the people does not rule."

Declaring that he was "wearing the collar of no faction or party," John Henry, Democratic candidate for mayor, flayed "rackets" and "crooked elections." He added:

"I venture the assertion that the city can be run twice as well at half the price."

'BEWARE OF THE WOLF'

James Malone made it known that he was "not a crusader and not a reformer," then said:

"No gang in sheep's clothing is going to steal this election. There is plenty of time before the primaries and when the time comes—we are going to talk. Beware of the wolf crowd."

Judge Ralph H. Smith, who was addressed by Chairman E. J. Wuerthele as "Little Dynamite," said:

"Don't worry about what is going in the ballot boxes—it's keeping it in. You have to be careful of the vote stealing."

Other candidates speaking were A. D. Brandon, Mrs. Lois McBride, Mrs. Anne Felix, Alexander P. Lindsay, C. V. Shoup, Raymond Evans, Charles Wolf and John Collins.

ATTORNEY'S SLATE

At the William Penn Hotel Democratic lawyers of the county elected and agreed to support the following list of candidates for the bench:

County Chairman David L. Lawrence presided.

SEVENTH WARD ACTIVE

The Seventh Ward Democrats also did a little political work last night at the Liberty School by forming the Democratic Seventh Ward Club, John James Murray, Democratic city chairman, presided.

Officers of the new club elected at the meeting are James P. Barr, president; Joseph Nathan, vice president; Elizabeth H. Smith, corresponding secretary; Clara L. Blatt, financial secretary, and Leo J. Coyle, treasurer.

The candidacy of Barr and Coyle was indorsed for Council, while E. V. Brennan was indorsed for Alderman.

Ely's Bridge Team Leading by 9,150

LONDON, July 22.—(INS.)—With a lead of 9,150 points over the British team in the 300-board international contract bridge tournament for a trophy by Charles M. Schwab, the American team headed by Ely Culbertson today entered the last day of the contest almost assured of a victory over the Britons.

The score at the end of the 250th board was: United States, 83,200 points; England, 74,050 points.

MADELEINE F. A. DICK

ASTOR WIDOW DIVORCES DICK

RENO, Nev., July 22.—(INS.)—Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick, New York society leader, whose first husband, John Jacob Astor, lost his life in the Titanic disaster in 1912, obtained a divorce here today from William K. Dick, wealthy sugar magnate, on the grounds of extreme cruelty. The case was tried privately.

Since her arrival in Nevada, June 8, Mrs. Dick has been living with her two sons in a fashionable bungalow on the Nevada side of Lake Tahoe. Reports linking her in romance with Vincente Fiermonte, handsome young Italian pugilist, who is expected to file a divorce suit here within a short time, have been vigorously denied.

Mrs. Dick told International News Service that Fiermonte is "just a nice boy" who met her sons when they were returning from Europe on a boat last year.

The Dicks were married June 22, 1916. Property rights and custody of the children were settled in an undisclosed agreement.

Jeannette Relief Racket Revealed

GREENSBURG, PA., July 22.—Petty relief racket practices are worrying county agencies. One case in Jeannette revealed that for six months neighbors of a family which had moved away, continued to claim relief checks.

PLANS OF ONLY 2 BANKS HERE COMPLETED

Reed Opens Inquiry on 53 in Hands of Conservators

Only two of the unlicensed national banks in Pittsburgh and its suburbs have completed development work on plans which may be expected to permit their reorganization and reopening.

This became known late yesterday following the launching of an inquiry by Senator David A. Reed into the condition of closed national banks in Western Pennsylvania. As a part of the inquiry, special bank examiners are to study the condition of 53 institutions in this part of the state which now are in the hands of conservators.

PLANS INCOMPLETE

Conservators and officials of the banks in Pittsburgh and its immediate suburbs insisted that they had been making efforts to get their institutions into situations of sufficient liquidity to permit a resumption of normal activity. In nearly every case, however, they declared, that their plans are not sufficiently definite to permit them to discuss the details or to submit the plans to the bank examiners.

The unlicensed banks are those which were not permitted to open after the end of the national banking holiday which started immediately following President Roosevelt's nomination March 4.

The two banks which appear to have made the most definite progress toward reopening are the Union National Bank of Carnegie and the First National Bank of Wilkinsburg.

SEEKING APPROVAL

A definite plan for the Union National of Carnegie has been completed. F. C. Hopper, cashier, has been in Washington for the greater part of the past two weeks in order to obtain official approval of the plan.

The First National Bank of Wilkinsburg is to be reorganized as the First National Bank at Wilkinsburg. T. M. Allen, member of the committee working on the reorganization, stated yesterday that depositors have subscribed for 2,500 of a total of 4,000 shares in the new institution at $62.50 a share. The plan contemplates the raising of $100,000 of new cash from depositors and the subscription of $150,000 from deposits now frozen in the bank. The work of obtaining subscriptions has been under way for two weeks. It is expected that from a week to 10 days will be needed to complete the sale of the stock, after which the work of organizing the new institution may be completed.

NOT READY NOW

A. S. Beymer, conservator for the Keystone National Bank, declared that the institution is not sufficiently liquid to permit reopening at present. He said that he expects to have a plan of reorganization ready soon.

Robert M. Baldridge, conservator of the Union National Bank of McKeesport, said that his plans are not far enough along for them to be discussed.

At the First National Bank of Tarentum, it was declared that work is under way on a plan but it is not in definite shape at this time.

At the First National Bank of Braddock, it was said that a plan is nearing completion and is almost ready for submission to the bank examiners.

WORKING ON PLAN

J. W. Giffen, conservator of the First National Bank of Crafton, declared that a committee has been working on an arrangement to reopen the bank, but that no definite plan has been completed.

In launching his survey, Senator Reed declared that there are more national banks in charge of conservators in Western Pennsylvania than in any similar area in the United States. To date only one national bank in this district, in Erie, has been licensed to open following a reorganization subsequent to the bank holiday. Plans have been approved for the reorganization of another bank in Johnstown, and this institution is expected to reopen soon.

Senator Reed charged that delays in reopening national banks here are due to the fact that conservators have failed to submit reorganization plans to the Comptroller of the Currency.

Dead Mate Bigamist, Wife Says in Suit

A $10,000 suit has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Mrs. Elizabeth Nalepa, of Flowers avenue, Hazelwood, against the estate of her late husband, John Nalepa, who, she alleges, married her bigamously.

The suit, the first of its kind in Pennsylvania since 1858 was filed through Mrs. Nalepa's attorney, Arthur I. Zeigler and was directed at Arthur Nalepa, son of the deceased, by another marriage, and executor of the estate.

Mrs. Nalepa said she did not discover she had been bigamously married until she attempted to take out letters of administration on the estate of her husband, who, Zeiger said, ended his life by swallowing poison two months ago.

A day before his death, Zeiger said he learned, Nalepa made a will leaving his estate, said to be valued at about $10,000, to his three sons by his first wife.

Nalepa's first wife died several years ago. He obtained only a temporary separation from his second wife, Zeiger said. He married the plaintiff in May, 1932, after a year's acquaintance, the suit alleges.

the holy hill in Rome, he said to the man accompanying him:

"I swear before you, I swear by the God of my forefathers, I swear by my native country, that I shall never allow my hands to be idle nor my soul to rest until I have broken the shackles which chain us to Spain."

Many would have smiled hearing a youth hardly out of his boyhood, pledging himself to so great an undertaking. But there are statues to that young man now in dozens of South American cities one in New York Central Park; and in Caracas, Venezuela, his birthplace, on a magnificent monument built in his honor, you read these words:

"Simon Bolivar, liberator of Venezuela, New Granada, Ecuador, Peru, founder of Bolivia."

Bolivar fought with small forces, fighting desperately and:

"One of his battles freed a country more than twice as big as Germany; another brought independence to a land more than double the size of France; another wrested from the Spaniards a territory over five times as large as Spain."

CHARLES H. KLINE: JURIST, MAYOR, POLITICIAN

FORMER MAYOR KLINE DEAD

nounced him guilty of malfeasance in office, friends said, hastened his death.

It was on the plea of ill health and physicians' reports corroborating this that he escaped the sentence of six months in jail. He drew upon all his resources in fighting the conviction, and suffered accordingly in health.

His physician had said that if he went to jail, he would not live six months.

It was a cruel blow, this anti-climax to an otherwise brilliant career, for a man of the former mayor's caliber. He had been an accomplished barrister, a popular legislator and a political power.

In a few short months, all was swept away, and the former mayor retired in ignominy.

He was in his second term as mayor when the storm broke. Its beginning scarcely forewarned of the turbulent times that were to follow for the Mayor.

February 5, 1931, John D. Houston, wholesale grocer, wrote to City Council charging favoritism was being shown in awarding city contracts for canned goods.

A few days later, the Mayor opened a secret investigation of Houston's charges. Houston demanded an open hearing. On February 24, Mayor Kline discharged Bertram L. Succop as head of the Supplies Department for "visible irregularities."

There followed several weeks of stormy going, in which civic bodies demanded audits and action by Council. Finally an audit got under way with aides of District Attorney A. T. Park assigned to check it.

On June 1 Park asked the grand jury to investigate alleged irregularities in the Supplies Department, and 25 days later, Kline and Succop were indicted on charges of malfeasance in office.

FEARED TRIAL HERE

January 7, 1932, Kline and Succop asked the Pennsylvania Supreme Court for a change of venue. They averred they could not get a fair trial in their home county because of the "inflamed public mind."

It was the first admission on the part of the Mayor that he knew his prestige and power was on the wane. January 19 the Supreme Court granted a change of venue to Butler County and assigned a Philadelphia jurist—Judge Thomas D. Finletter—to try the case.

The trial was postponed once because of alleged attempts to "fix" the jury. The trial finally got under way May 2. The jury brought in a verdict May 14. Kline was convicted on one count; Succop on 29.

There followed months of legal moves as the defendants fought the case. Judge Finletter set aside the verdict against Kline and sentenced Succop to a year in jail. The Superior Court reversed the decision. The Supreme Court refused to entertain an appeal on February 21, 1933.

SENTENCED TO JAIL

The Mayor was sentenced March 1 to six months in jail, fined $5,000, and automatically removed from office. He appealed from the sentence, but the Supreme Court never heard the appeal. The Mayor resigned when the trial court wiped out the jail sentence on condition that Kline would quit office. He paid a $5,000 fine.

The Mayor sought and found seclusion thereafter. He was in poor health and kept to his apartments in Park Mansions.

me. I wish to extend my deepest sympathy to Mrs. Kline."

Councilman W. Y. English:

"Mayor Kline was always considerate of the authority of Council as the legislative branch of the city government. He did not interfere with Council and he expected Council in turn not to take over any executive powers belonging to the Mayor. He never dictated, that is why we got along well."

Judge Ambrose B. Reid:

"He made a very good judge. He was industrious and efficient and his colleagues on the bench regretted his departure to go into politics.

Controller J. P. Kerr:

"I regret very much indeed the sudden death of ex-Mayor Kline. I wish to extend my heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Kline in her hour of sorrow."

Councilman Harry A. Little:

"Thousands of people in this city will miss him. He was good to the men that worked under him. As to his relations with City Council, we always worked in harmony. He was one of the finest gentlemen I ever knew."

Supt. of Police Franklin T. McQuaide:

"I have known Mayor Kline for many years. He was generous, kind and charitable. His death was untimely."

Inspector of Detectives Frank R. Boyd:

"Mayor Kline was a personal friend of mine. He never did an unkind act in his life. He was a sincere and loyal friend. The good he did will be remembered in years to come."

Ex-Mayor Kline's Career Reviewed

Work as Legislator, Judge and City's Chief Outlined

Charles Howard Kline was born December 25, 1870, in Indiana, Pa., a son of Wellington B. and Anna Margaret Custer Kline. He was educated in the Indiana public schools and Indiana Normal School. After completing a preparatory course in Kiskiminetas school, Kline attended the University of Pennsylvania. He was admitted to the Philadelphia County bar in 1898 and to the Allegheny County bar a year later.

Kline's ancestors were Huguenots. His great-grandfather, Gene Bertolet, immigrated to Berks County in 1726. A paternal ancestor, Paul Custer, came to this country in 1704 and settled in Germantown, a section of Philadelphia.

WED IN 1900

Mayor Kline was married October 24, 1900, to Katherine Whitesell Johnson. Their city home is in the Park Mansions and, during the summer, they had been occupying a cottage at Madison, O., on Lake Erie. A brother, George H. Kline, is a merchant in Johnstown; a sister lives in a sanitarium in Mercer.

Shortly after Kline arrived in Pittsburgh, he established his home in the district now included in the Ninth Ward. He showed an early aptitude for politics and soon was taken under the wing of his neighbor, former State Senator M. G. Leslie.

In 1904, Kline was elected in the Fifth Legislative District to the State House of Representatives and in 1907 was elected a state senator.

He served three terms in the Senate, during which, as chairman of the Appropriations Committee, he made a study of the management and conduct of charitable institutions supported by the state. He was instrumental in obtaining a one-third increase in the appropriations for Allegheny County institutions.

Kline was Republican city chairman of Pittsburgh in 1916 and 1917, and was Republican chairman of Allegheny County in 1918.

APPOINTED JUDGE

The late Gov. William C. Sproul appointed Kline on March 12, 1919, to one of the two judgeships created by the Legislature. The other appointee was Stephen Stone, then city solicitor in the administration of former Mayor Edward V. Babcock. Later in 1919, Kline was elected to the bench for a 10-year term. During this term Kline wrote a highly valued work of 15 volumes explaining the principles of civil and criminal law.

During the latter part of former Mayor William A. Magee's last administration, factional discord threatened to disrupt the city and county Republican organizations and Kline was induced by W. L. Mellon, Republican state chairman, to become a harmony candidate for Mayor. He was elected and, after resigning from the bench, was inducted into the Mayor's office in January, 1926.

Mayor Kline's administration was marked by a grand jury investigation ordered by the federal courts and another ordered by the county courts of Common Pleas. In the fourth year of his term, 1929, reports were circulated that Kline would not seek re-election.

Began Public Service In 1904 Sponsored By Max Leslie

Months before, friends of James F. Malone, then president of City Council, began a campaign to boom Malone for mayor and during the summer of 1929 he announced his candidacy. Kline then yielded to his friends' pleas to seek another term.

THREE-CORNERED RACE

The situation was complicated by the entry of the late Judge Richard W. Martin, whose friends believed he would get more independent votes than Malone and that the latter would reduce Kline's organization following to an extent that would return Martin a winner.

Kline was re-elected and in January, 1930, began his second term, the first mayor in Pittsburgh to succeed himself.

Kline was a member of Masonic societies and other fraternal bodies, of the Duquesne Club, Pittsburgh Athletic Association, the Ashtabula Country Club, Oakmont Country Club, Madison Golf Club, University Club, Pittsburgh Country Club, Longue Vue Country Club, Western Pennsylvania Historical Society and Sons of the American Revolution.

Kline was chairman of the board of St. Francis Hospital, a trustee of Homeopathic Hospital and a trustee of Larimer Avenue Home of the Good Shepherd.

AMY LOOKS STRAINED

His wife, Amy Johnson Mollison, who last November set a London-to-Capetown record, looked a little strained as she jumped into the cockpit beside her husband at the dual controls. She wore white overalls.

She exclaimed:

"Now for the greatest adventure of my life."

There was very little wind as Mollison, who was at the guiding control, opened the throttle and began the run along the beach for the takeoff.

Clouds of sand were flung up as the "Seafarer" gathered speed and swept along at 70 miles an hour.

PERFECT TAKE-OFF

Jim, handling the plane superbly, started it into the air after a 500-yard run.

There was a burst of cheering from the crowd as the "Seafarer" took off. After reaching a height of 200 feet, Jim swung its nose towards the open Atlantic and the Mollisons started off toward the New World.

FIRST VENTURE TOGETHER

This was the first time they pooled their knowledge and ability. Capt. Mollison, who is 28, and Amy Johnson Mollison, 24, were married July 29, after each had won fame in the air.

They seek three records—the first Great Britain-to-New York flight, the first two-way crossing of the Atlantic, a new non-stop, straight-line mark.

Their plane is a veritable flying gas tank; every available inch has been made into a fuel container.

IN NEW YORK TOMORROW

Mollison said:

"If all goes well, we expect to be in New York by 10 o'clock Sunday night. We are taking on 400 gallons of gasoline, which will give us a margin of something like 800 miles."

No luggage of any kind was taken.

She said:

"I'd never dream of making a flight without it. Jim always has his lucky St. Christopher Charm. We are not taking anything to eat except a few sticks of barley sugar, some raisins and coffee in a vacuum flask."

German Flying Sea Unreported at Goal

PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, July 22.—(AP.)—No word had been received here today of the German aviator, Gunther Wirtschaft, who started from Dakar, Senegal, Thursday, on a projected flight across the Atlantic to Pernambuco.

Apprehensions for his safety were aroused because stormy weather was reported in midocean and because he was understood to have carried gasoline sufficient for 21 hours, which elapsed yesterday at 7:45 p. m., Pittsburgh time.

Hawks Set to Fly To Saskatchewan

Hawks planned to take off from Floyd Bennett Field early Monday on the 1,620-mile hop. He will be a guest af the World's Grain Exhibition at Regina.

LINDYS AIMING AT GREENLAND

HOPEDALE, Labrador, July 22.—(AP.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh hoped for satisfactory flying conditions today to enable them to resume a flight from Cartwright, Labrador, to Julianhaab, Greenland, interrupted yesterday by fog.

In Greenland they will join other members of an aerial mapping expedition. For a week they waited for good weather at Cartwright, 150 miles away, but were forced to land here after being in the air two hours.

POST FLYING HOME STRETCH

"I can stand it."

He hoped to be back in New York by midnight, eastern standard time. He said:

"I'm not certain I can make it in one hop, but that is sure my intention."

Post made a deft landing. He taxied the Winnie Mae across Blatchford Field in a driving rain and came to a halt a few feet from trucks waiting with gasoline for him.

For three minutes after he had stopped he sat in the cockpit, his hand clapped over his white eyepatch. Then he clambored out, saying he had a splitting headache.

Still holding his head, he fell into the arms of a waiting official and was guided through 3,000 cheering people.

Attendants hurried about, tuning up the plane and loading gasoline aboard. Meanwhile Post sat at a table in the airport building, resting. He was deaf from the roar of the machine. A batch of telegrams was handed to him, and he checked over them.

The last half of the leg from Fairbanks was complicated by bad weather which, Post said, provided him with a "big worry." For three hours he had to fly at 20,000 feet.

He remarked that the robot pilot, with which he had difficulty earlier in the flight, had "worked okay" on the Fairbanks-Edmonton hop.

Alberta Province and city officials had made certain of being on hand to greet him by staying at the airport throughout the night.

22 CHURCHES OF EAST END TO COMBINE FOR SERVICE

CARNEGIE HALL MEETING AT 8 O'CLOCK

Open-air and indoor community services continue throughout the Pittsburgh district. Twenty-two participating churches in the East End, Oakland, Shadyside and Squirrel Hill districts will meet at 8 p. m. tomorrow in Carnegie Music Hall, Oakland, to hear the Rev. Karl A. Stein, pastor of the Grace Reformed Church, preach.

The Rev. Kinley McMillan, of the Herron Avenue Presbyterian Church, will conduct devotional exercises and Norval R. Daugherty will preside. Music will be furnished by the Grace Church.

SERVICE IN PARK

North Side churches will combine services in West Park, with the Rev. Dr. Henry A. Welday speaking on "Bridges." Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell will sing, accompanied by Edna May Sharpe.

North Boroughs churches will meet on the Y. M. C. A. lawn to hear the Rev. Dr. J. Burwell Lamb, of the Bellevue Methodist Protestant Church, speak on "Jesus' Thought of God."

The Rev. Dr. T. C. McKnight will address community services of East Boroughs churches in the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church at 7:45 p. m.

Open air services will be held in Westinghouse Park at 7 p. m. and in Olympia Park at 7:45 p. m.

KNOXVILLE SERVICE

South Hills churches will assemble on the grounds of the Knoxville Junior High School at 7 p. m. to hear the Rev. W. R. McGeary, of the Knoxville United Presbyterian Church.

A number of East End and Shadyside churches will combine services in the Gustavus Adolphus Lutheran Church, Friendship and Evaline avenues, at 8 p. m. tomorrow. The Rev. W. L. Morgan, of the Pacific Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, will preach on "The Gospel of Roses." The Lutheran Male Chorus of 30 voices and the church choir, will sing.

MORMONS HOLD CONFERENCE

Missionary delegates from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 4928 Wallingford street, Shadyside, will participate in the celebration and conference of the Mormon Church, which begins in Palmyra, N. Y., today and continues until Monday evening.

More than 100 young men and women representing the three-quarters of a million members of the Mormon Church in the United States and Canada will be present.

Palmyra, N. Y., has been the scene of many of the outstanding events in the early history of the Mormon Church. As a boy, the prophet, Joseph Smith, lived there. A few miles from the village is the famous Hill Cumorah, from the sides of which the young Joseph was said to have removed metalic plates on which was inscribed a record of ancient inhabitants of America. Translated, these plates became the Book of Mormon. Here the church had its origin 103 years ago.

Dancing Contests At Scots' Outing

Reels and jigs to bagpipe music will make up the program at the annual gathering of the Scottish Clans August 5 in Kennywood Park. Dancers from many parts of the country will compete in Highland fling, sword dance, sailors' hornpipe and Irish jig contests. Medals will be awarded winners.

Dr. Ewers Leaves For Chautauqua

The Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, pastor of the East End Christian Church, leaves today for Chautauqua, N. Y., where he will act as chaplain during the week of July 23 to 28. He will conduct a series of lectures every afternoon and evening and will preach the regular morning service next Sunday.

Prayer On Mountain Topic in Homestead

"Why Did Christ Go Out Into a Mountain to Pray?" will be the subject of the sermons to be preached at 3 and 8 p. m. tomorrow in the Church of God's Love, Homestead, by the Rev. Clara Cook and the Rev. J. Taylor.

The Story of Joseph -:- CHAPTER III -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

Potiphar's wife was so crazy about Joseph that she made love to him ardently, but he still resisted her. She caught him alone in the house one day and flung herself into his arms, trying to win his love.

Joseph flung himself loose and dashed out, but he tore his garment in the struggle and a piece was left in the hands of Potiphar's beautiful wife, who in her disappointment now became angry with him.

Potiphar's wife was so enraged that she told the guards Joseph had attacked her, and when Potiphar came home she told him the same thing, showing her husabnd Joseph's torn garment.

Believing the false story told by his wife about the young overseer, Potiphar ordered that Joseph be thrown into prison, and this was done.

NEW MINISTER WELCOMED

The Rev. Edward Harold Miller, new minister of the Spencer Methodist Episcopal Church, Spencer and Churchview avenues, Carrick, his wife and daughters, were welcomed at a reception by members and friends this week.

Greetings from the various organizations of the church were brought by J. R. Dulaney of the finance committee, Harry Green of the Sunday school, Miss Dolores Miller, of the Young People's organizations, and Mrs. J. Loyd Carnahan of the Ladies' Aid and Missionary societies.

D. Alden Rosser, Mrs. William E. Richards, Miss Lois Smith and Miss Naomi Hooper, sang, and Miss Miriam Bierman gave a piano solo.

Mr. Miller came to Pittsburgh from Baden, Pa.

Evangelist to Talk At Volunteer Church

Evangelist William D. Rhue will preach at the Volunteers of America Church, 724 East Diamond street, at 8 p. m. tomorrow.

Pastor Resigns, Called To Forest Army Duty

Dr. Freeman Becomes Chaplain to 16,000 In State Camps

The resignation of the Rev. Dr. Ira Freeman as pastor of the Lorenz Avenue Baptist Church, West End, came as a surprise this week. Two months ago, Dr. Freeman, a reserve officer in the United States Army, was ordered to active duty and assigned to the Western Pennsylvania Civilian Conservation Corps District.

His congregation voted him a leave of absence for six months, but Dr. Freeman stated in his resignation that he did not believe this arrangement was fair to the church. He has been with the Lorenz Avenue Baptist Church for six years, during which time $31,000 has been expended for improvements, the Sunday school has more than doubled its membership, and approximately 130 new members have been received.

Dr. Freeman plans to give all his time, as chaplain, to the 16,000 young men in the 79 Civilian Conservation Corps Camps of Western Pennsylvania.

Luther League Officers Announce Engagement

YORK, Pa., July 22.—(AP.)—Delegates at the closing session of the fortieth annual convention, Pennsylvania State Luther League convention, were provided with an unscheduled feature last night when two officials of the organization announced their engagement.

Miss Emma M. Gusky, of Bellevue, Pittsburgh, who earlier was elected state secretary, and John George Kurzenknabe, of Harrisburg, first vice president of the Luther League of America, and immediate past president of the state body, were surrounded by delegates and clergymen at the close of the evening service following the announcement of their engagement.

Officers installed last night are: Luther C. Schmehl, president; Luther C. Lang, Wilkes-Barre, first vice president; Emma M. Gusky, Pittsburgh, secretary; Emily W. Freundt, Allentown, assistant secretary, and Robert T. Menges, Menges Mills, treasurer.

With the exception of Hazel E. Hannah, Freedom, who was installed as secretary of the missionary department, all departmental secretaries were reappointed.

Harrisburg is expected to be chosen as the next meeting place.

Mt. Zion Lutheran Church Picnicking

The congregation, Sunday School and Vacation Bible School of Mt. Zion Lutheran Church, South Evaline street, are holding their annual picnic at Highland Park today. A mush ball game between married and single men is to be featured this afternoon.

The fourth annual Vacation Bible School closed at 10:30 a. m. yesterday. The enrollment this year was more than 100, in charge of the Rev. Dr. David E. Maxwell, pastor, and 12 teachers.

'Truth' to Be Topic of Science Church

"Truth" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read tomorrow in all Christian Science Churches. The golden text will be: "The Lord is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations."

St. Peter's Picnic To Be Held Aug. 16

The annual picnic of the St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Sunday School will be held Wednesday, August 16, at Riverview Park.

NEW PROGRAM ADOPTED BY LUTHERANS

CHICAGO, July 22.—((AP.)—A new program designed to meet better present day church problems was adopted yesterday by the forty-first international Walther League convention.

All activities of the league will be placed in the two new departments of Christian Knowledge and Christian Service.

For the cultural development of the Lutheran Church, a program was outlined which will eventually eliminate "shallow, vacuous socials, bunco parties and 'what have you' programs," and offer instead an "extended and intensified program of definite cultural value."

After adopting a budget of $25,000 for 1933-34, the convention ended.

BROOKLYN MAN ACCUSED OF AIDING REDS

BERLIN, July 22.—(AP.)—Walter Orloff, a Brooklyn student arrested at Greifswald and charged with aiding Communistic activities, has been accused of high treason by Nazi officials.

United States Consul General George W. Messersmith was told by the German and Prussian ministries of justice about the charge and informed deportation proceedings were impossible.

Nevertheless the hope was entertained at the consulate that Orloff could soon be returned to the United States.

The case of Philip Zuckerman, of New York, a Jew, who has dealt in furs here since 1931, and who, he said, was badly beaten by "brown shirts" in Leipzig last Sunday, also engaged the attention of the consulate today.

Zuckerman declared several "brown shirts" left a parade and attacked him and his wife even though he told them he was an American citizen. The American asserted he had to return here for medical treatment.

Officials Messersmith visited expressed regret and promised the offenders would be punished.

Meanwhile, Prussian Premier Wilhelm Goering summoned Prussian cabinet members, secret police chiefs, district court judges and others for a conference today on projected laws to "increase the speed and activity particularly of the secret police so that not the slightest counter-movement against the National Socialist revolution fighters and against the new state will be possible henceforth."

It was expected the death sentence would be decreed for "any attempt at sabotage of the government's work."

World Boycott League Organized by Jews

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Universal Service.

AMSTERDAM, July 22.—The scheduled Jewish economic warfare against Nazi Germany, with a boycott of German trade in virtually every country, took international organized form yesterday.

A Jewish world boycott conference as formed by the Jewish World Economic Federation here as a "general staff" to direct and prosecute an extensive boycott against German goods throughout the world.

Samuel Untermyer, New York attorney, was elected president, and Lord Melchett, of England, is to be offered the chairmanship.

Untermyer told Universal Service an intensive "defensive drive" would be started, against not only German products, but against German shipping, tourist traffic, financial transactions and every other interest that can be hit.

At the same time, a political campaign is to be made through the League of Nations at Geneva. The conference adopted a resolution, sponsored by Untermyer, which asks league action against Germany on five different lines:

1—That "Nansen," or League of Nations passports be furnished German Jews.

2—That the league enforce the labor union provisions of the Versailles Treaty.

3—That the league protect minorities in Germany.

4—That Geneva furnish protection and immediate relief for the "tens of thousands" of German Jews who have fled from the reich; and

5—That a commission of investigation be sent to Germany.

Hitler 'Air Attack' Assails Dollfuss

VIENNA, July 22.—(AP.)—Nazi airplanes yesterday raided a long section of Austria bordering on Germany, from Reutte through Kufstein to Bischofshofen to Salzburg to Reid, scattering handbills denouncing the Dollfuss government and urging Austrian Hitlerites to action.

Defense planes took off in pursuit, but were unable to overtake the Nazi craft at any point.

Vatican-Reich Concord Gives Church Freedom

Holy See Agrees to Take No Part in Politics

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service.

VATICAN CITY, July 22.—Freedom of public practice of the Catholic religion in Germany, in return for the assurance the church will take no part in German politics, is guaranteed by the new concordat between the Hitler government and the Vatican, it was revealed today with publication of the text of the document.

The concordat, formally signed Thursday by Col. Franz von Papen, the German vice-chancellor, and Cardinal Pacelli, the Papal secretary of state, is 5,000 words long, defining in detail the rights to be enjoyed by both the church and the state where their affairs intertwine.

The three concordate previously concluded respectively with the German states of Prussia, Bavaria and Baden remain unchanged.

The document acknowledges the right of the church to settle its affairs independently within the general law. The reich grants the Holy See espiscopate free correspondence and unhindered publication of pastoral letters and official diocesan papers.

Priests must be German citizens who have had at least three years education in universities of either Germany or Rome.

Bishops must take oaths of loyalty to the reich, and promise to respect the legal government.

The reich guarantees church property and theological professorships in universities. The teaching of the Catholic religion in all schools of the department of instruction will be carried out in accordance with the teachings of the church.

The concordat guarantees the preservation of confessional schools and the establishment of new ones.

Religious orders are entitled to manage private schools. Priests will be permitted to work in hospitals and prisons.

Catholic organizations entirely devoted to social and professional purposes will be protected if they keep out of party politics, and organizations devoted to religious, cultural, and charitable purposes will be protected unconditionally.

The Holy See agrees to prohibit its priests from membership in all political parties.

Job Seekers Warned To Avoid Capital

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP.)—The Public Works Administration yeterday warned job seekers not to come to Washington because 99 per cent of them would be disappointed.

Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, said the staff at Washington would be limited to a small technical force. Employment on the projects themselves will be handled locally, he added.

Sir Henry Thornton's Daughter Marrying

HARRISBURG, July 22.—(AP.)—Miss Anna Blair Thornton today weds Dr. Winston F. Harrison and with him will return to Canada, where her father, the late Sir Henry Thornton, was president of the Canadian National Railways.

JEWISH DRIVE CLOSING, PLEA RENEWED

With two days remaining in Pittsburgh's relief drive for the needy Jews in Germany, Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson, of Rodef Shalom Temple, today urged every citizen to aid in the campaign, saying:

"Suffering has no quota."

Rabbi Goldenson said German Jews are undergoing humiliation and degradation that comes from organized hatred.

Mrs. Saul Lavine, chairman of the women's division of Pittsburgh's share in the $2,000,000 drive, said over radio station KQV last night:

"Every day some new kind of economic exclusion act is being passed in Germany to prevent a group of honorable, righteous citizens from maintaining their self-respect. The situation is far worse than it ever was in Poland or Soviet Russia."

She decried enslaving of the intellectual life of the German Jews, saying:

"It is an intolerable thought that those minds which have contributed to the science and literature and art of the world should be stilled because of a nationalistic fanaticism."

Mrs. Lavine said that a short time ago Dr. Jonah B. Wise, chairman of the National German Relief Campaign, told her thousands of Jewish children have been driven from their schools and that no school is allowed more than 5 per cent Jews. She closed her talk, explaining:

"We are asking assistance not in the name of the Jews of the world, but in the name of a common humanity which has for its goal the fellowship of all people wherever they live and have their being."

CLERIC OUSTED BY NAZI PARTY

BIELEFELD, Germany, July 22.—(AP.)—The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, one of the closest collaborators of the Rev. Friedrich Von Bodelschwingh, chosen late in May by non-Nazi Protestant church groups as Reichbishop, was excluded from the Nazi party yesterday. He had been a member since 1926.

The reason for the exclusion was that he had joined a score of Westphalian Nazi ministers in a protest against the manner in which Nazi German Christians were dragging politics into the church, endangering church liberty.

It was expected the other signers also would be read out of the party.

Workman Jailed For Hitler Haircut

INNSBRUCK, Austria, July 22.—(AP.)—A Hitler haircut cost a workingman here a three weeks' jail sentence.

He was convicted of having a Nazi Swastika emblem shaved upon his scalp.

Cigaret Causes Death of Woman 108 Years Old

CHICAGO, July 22.—(AP.)—Her usual evening cigaret caused the death of Mrs. Cruz Martinez, whose son, said she was 108 years old.

Smoking on the steps of her home Thursday night, she fell asleep. The cigaret set her dress on fire. Her son beat the flames out with a blanket, but she died in a hospital yesterday.

DOLLAR DINNER MENUS HOLD INTEREST

Can four persons be served with a well-balanced, appetizing dinner menu at a cost not to exceed ONE DOLLAR? This is the important question that is absorbing the attention of thousands of housewives throughout the reading area of the Sun-Telegraph.

For five weeks the Prudence Penny prize dinner contest has been based on $1.50 menus. Changing the cost price has increased the interest of the women in this important economic problem and the results are being eagerly watched. The $1 figure is the problem in this week's contest and the prize list still totals $100 in cash for the week, with $25 as the first prize.

It isn't too late to enter this week's competition. Let's see how you can best spend a $1 bill for a dinner for four. Entries do not have to be submitted before midnight next Tuesday. Sheriff to War On Speeding Boats

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., July 21.—(AP.)—Speeding motor boats on Lake Lynn have brought a new problem in traffic regulation to Sheriff Charles T. Hickman.

He has ordered his deputies to arrest those operating motor boats recklessly, endangering canoeists and swimmers.

TWO ARRESTED IN DRY RAID

Charles Lamarca, 20, and Guy Paul, 40, occupants of a double house at 119-121 Frustrum street, Corliss, today were held on charges of violating the Snyder act following a raid on the house last night.

Constables S. C. Graham and C. Becker, of Glenfield, reported seizing a 100-gallon still in the basement of Paul's home. The raiders said the homes of the two men are connected by a passageway which also connects with a garage where 45 gallons of moonshine were found.

SLASH IN PARK FORCE DENIED

County Commissioners indicated today they would hear the protest of the Mutual co-operative Association, which asserts that forestry workers paid $1 daily have caused dismissal of county employes in the parks.

Commissioner W. D. Mansfield said he knew of no employes being laid off. Regis Walsh, head of the county personnel department, said that instead of layoffs resulting, the government had asked and been supplied with four employes experienced in forestry work.

2 BOYS RESCUE 4 IN RIVER

WHEELING, W. Va., July 22.—(AP.)—Richard Critchfield and Harry Springer, both 19, saved Mrs. William Bierkortte and her three children from drowning yesterday after a boat in which they were riding upset in the Ohio River.

Neither the woman nor her children—Dorothy, 16; Kathleen, 14, and Raymond,7—could swim. The youths kept them on the surface until a boat put out from the bank and picked them up.

Children at Camp Get Special Dinner

A special dinner was being served to the children of the Volunteers of America Fresh Air Camp today sponsored by Frank W. Preston and 12 of his colleagues, who are connected with the People's Gas Company. An inspection of the camp will be made by the visiting delegation.

REGISTRATIONS SHOW GAIN

Registrations in the boroughs and townships totaled 298,774, nearly 5,000 more than those of last year, it was revealed today by Maj. W. T. Rees, head of the County Elections Bureau.

Figures for Wednesday's enrollments show 6,000 Republicans changed their affiliations to the Democratic party for a total of 56,668.

Maj. Rees announced that residents of boroughs and townships could register until September 6—10 days before the primary.

Democrats—Boroughs, 34,259; townships, 21,905; total, 56,668.

Of the seven other parties, the Socialists were largest with 1,199.

Katharine Cornell, Cutting, Mills Sail

NEW YORK, July 22.—(AP.)—Senator Bronson Cutting, of New York, former Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills, and Katharine Cornell, the actress, among other notables, sailed aboard the Europa early today for vacations in Europe.

The steamer, scheduled to sail at midnight, was held more than an hour for Gerald D'Acosta, apple dealer who flew from San Francisco to catch the boat.

CHAOS IN YARD OF COURT HOUSE ENDED

County's Autos Now Parked Neatly In Stalls

No longer does the county courthouse yard look like a parking lot owner's nightmare.

For years it was an old county custom to park the county cars any which way.

Each night drivers would park their cars willy nilly. Each morning, those same drivers would struggle in their efforts to wriggle their cars out of a hopelss jumble.

It was County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern who brought order out of chaos.

Why, he asked L. F. Gardner head of the county's transportation service, don't we divide this court yard into 40 stalls, one for each of the county's 40 cars?

Why not, indeed? Painters were called in, 40 neat rectangles were painted on the smooth asphalt.

Each car has a number. Each stall has a number. Nowadays the 40 cars stand parked in their proper places.

Westmoreland Taxes Less Than Normal

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 22. While tax collections in Westmoreland County are about on a par this year with 1932, they are below the collections for normal years, the report of the County Controller shows.

RUPTURE
OF CHICAGO HERE AGAIN

He will be at the Wm. Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa., on Tuesday and Wednesday, July 25th and 26th, from 1:00 P. M. to 8:00 P. M. daily. (Please note dates and hours carefully).

He has been coming here for many years. Thousands recommend him. Ask your neighbors. There is no cost for consulting him privately. Only men are invited.

CAUTION: Do not use trusses or plasters that often weaken the muscles, and do not submit to harmful injections or avoidable operations. Hundreds of Ruptures return after operations.

Do not neglect to see him on the above dates. There is no charge for demonstration. This visit is for white people only.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

As July is nearing an end, there is a flurry of preparation for August holidays. Many who've been in town so far through the summer are now succumbing to the lure of travel.

Thomas Van Kirk Douglass has joined his mother, Mrs W. Eugene Gary and Mr. Gary at Saranac Inn, N. Y., where the Garys are spending the remainder of the summer.

The Harry S. Tacks, of Sewickley, and their daughter, Lois, varied their travels with a visit in New York. While there they stopped at the St. Regis.

Southern Visitors

The A. J. P. Vandermyns, of Penn avenue, have as their house guests Mrs. Vandermyn's mother, Mrs. Robert F. Carr, and young sister, Ida Belle Carr, of Memphis, Tenn.

The Vandermyns entertained for them informally last night in their home.

Among those who'll be guests tonight at the weekly dinner-dance of the Devon Yacht Club, East Hampton, L. I., will be Dr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards.

Dates Taken

Fall dates are being snatched eagerly—and no wonder. Before long, our gay fall calendar will have events and events for every day—a delightful change from the past season.

The Sewickley Cot Club has taken unto itself a date—the date of October 26 when its first play of the season will be presented in the Edgewood Club: Tom Cushing's "The Devil in the Cheese."

Charles Richardson is president of the club; Mrs. George Phelps Rose, honorary president, and perhaps the hardest worker of all; Miss Lucy Haworth and Charles Lee Collins, vice presidents, and Mrs. John B. Dumont, Jr., secretary.

Catbird, Robin Now Pets of Clubwoman

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

There's one club woman in Pittsburgh who takes time out from club activities and home responsibilities to become thoroughly acquainted with her bird-neighbors. Indeed, Mrs. Arthur K. Rabe has adopted two of these neighbors as members of her family.

For a long time she has been feeding the birds who visit her Center avenue yard overlooking Schenley Farms, but when she returned recently from the Century of Progress Exposition, one catbird that she calls Bill made such a to-do and a fluttering that Mrs. Rabe took it as evidence of his welcome home.

Ever since then he has been flying right into the porch when Mrs. Rabe breakfasts or lunches there and he will come at her call or the tapping of a teaspoon on a cup. He even perches on her lap at times, but is usually shy of strangers.

And now Mrs. Rabe is adding a saucy robin to her family, for day by day Bob, the robin, is becoming better acquainted and soon, Mrs. Rabe says, he, too, will be feeding from her hand.

Mrs. Rabe is a member of Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, the Tuesday Musical Club and a charter member of the Congress of Clubs.

Bride Leaves Hospital to Be Married

LONDON—Lady Mary St. Clair-Erskine, who virtually rose from a sickbed to be married to Phillip Gordon Dunn, only son of Sir James Dunn, Canadian, has returned to a nursing home for treatment for blood poisoning. An automobile trip to the Danube was postponed.

The marriage took place at Brompton Oratory Thursday, the bride wearing satin bandages over an infected finger. She underwent an operation for blood-poisoning five days ago, and although it had been feared the wedding would have to be postponed, she felt well enough to go through the ceremony.

At the wedding reception at Sunderland House afterward the bride was unable to shake hands with the guests.

State C.D.A. Head To Attend Party For Miss King

Miss Frances Maher, of Kane, Pa., state regent of the Catholic Daughters of America, who was recently elected national treasurer at the convention in Colorado Springs, will return to Pittsburgh, to be a guest at the luncheon and card party being held next Saturday afternoon in Kaufmann's, as a testimonial to Miss Nora B. King, of Columbo street, East End. Miss King recently resigned her office as vice state regent of the organization.

Miss Maher has been touring Yellowstone Park and will also visit the World's Fair in Chicago before returning home. She is accompanied by Miss Stella Doherty, of New Kensington.

Miss Rose Murphy is general chairman for the luncheon, for which Miss Mary McGarry, of Fourth street, Aspinwall, is taking reservations.

Mrs. Cann and Mrs. Lewis On Cake Committee

Mrs. John Cann and Mrs. M. M. Lewis comprise the cake committee for the annual boat ride to be held Tuesday by the Guild of the Home of the Good Shepherd. The Washington is scheduled to leave the Wood street wharf at 9:30 and to return at 6:30.

MUSIC

Lawn Concert

THE PROGRAM

Wien Bleibt Wien	Schramme
"Der Rosenkavalier"	Richard Strauss
Aria—"Suicidio" from "La Gioconda"	Ponchielli
"The Chocolate Soldier" Selection	Oscar Straus
Marche Militaire	Schubert
(a) Liebesfreud	Kreisler
(b) The Cid Refrain	Kreisler
Concerto in E flat	Liszt
Melodies from "Sari"	Kalman
March from "Boccaccio"	Suppe

For his Viennese evening at the Schenley Lawn concert last night Victor Saudek gave us one of his happiest programs and conducted it as if he had real Wiener-blut in his veins. Whatever comes out of Vienna is good-natured and that is what all her waltzes tell us, from Lanner and all the Strausses down to any writer of the present.

Mr. Lissfelt

His playing of the two refrains of Kreisler savored of the Vienna woods and the "Rosenkavalier" waltzes of modern sophisticated harmonies which the last and best Strauss wrote with his tongue in his cheek.

The two soloists of the occasion were unusually fortunate choice. Edith Cantor Lazear sang the big "Suicide" air from "LaGioconda" with far more freedom of voice than has been her wont. There was a tragic repose in her reading and a breadth of declamation which made excellent musical effect.

Addison Jones, pianist, played the Liszt E Flat Concerto with a mighty swing. Particularly noticeable was the scherzo and his grand climax of octaves. As encores he offered a very smart composition of his own, "Paprika," a study in pert dissonances, and the octave Study of Emil Sauer.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

New Castle Girl, Pittsburgher on Honeymoon

After a motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bradbury will be at home in New Castle, Pa. Before their marriage Monday, Mrs. Bradbury was Miss Pauline Emma Wolf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Wolf, of New Castle. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bradbury, of Wilkinsburg.

Their marriage took place in St. John's Lutheran Church, New Castle, with the Rev. F. E. Stough officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white crepe gown with a finger tip jacket, a hat to match, and a shoulder corsage of white roses.

Her sister, Miss Gertrude Wolf, as her only attendant, wore a similar costume in blue crepe and had a shoulder corsage of pink roses. Ernest Bradbury was his brother's best man.

A reception in the home of the bride's parents followed for members of the two families.

The bride is a graduate of Temple University, and the bridegroom attended Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Sister to Be Attendant For Adrienne Doucette

Miss Adrienne Doucette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Doucette, of the East End, will have as her only attendant at her marriage Wednesday to Warren L. Kreuger her sister, Miss Francess Doucette. Robert A. Kreuger, of New York, will be his brother's best man.

The wedding, to take place at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in St. Paul's Cathedral with the Rev. Vincent Burke officiating, will be followed by a wedding breakfast in the Pittsburgh Field Club for members of the two families and intimate friends.

Cwens to Entertain With Bridge Monday

Cwens, honorary activities fraternity for women of the University of Pittsburgh, will entertain with a benefit bridge on the thirty-sixth floor of the Cathedral of Learning on Monday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Home and Hospital Club Luncheon on Tuesday

A covered dish luncheon at the home of Mrs. W. K. Allen, Lincoln avenue, has been planned for Tuesday by the Home and Hospital Club of Bellevue. On Saturday the club members will serve a cold supper at the borough firemen's carnival, and on August 1 they will have a card party at Spear's.

Women's Congress Pledges Relief to German-Jews

CHICAGO, July 22.—(AP.)—The International Congress of Women stood pledged today to a program to bring relief from alleged persecutions suffered by Jews in Germany.

The Congress—composed of delegates from 30 nations—decided its stand on the German-Jewish question in a vote yesterday immediately after adoption of a manifesto calling for a second woman's movement to better world conditions for both men and women.

The women, called into session by the National Council of Women, indorsed the disarmament conference scheduled for October and added a word that drastic curtailment of arms was necessary to the peace of the world.

Then they heard Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, Washington, tell them that women's clubs would have to adopt a new technique to fit the changing conditions of life.

She explained what she meant by "technique" when she said that women speakers before the Congress had expressed themselves more than they would have dared before any women's organization.

The manifesto reads:

"The Congress believes that every person, to whatever sex, race, nationality or creed he or she may belong, is entitled to security of life, work, the reward of labor, health and education; to protection against war and crime, and to opportunity for self-expression.

"Yet even in parts of the world where feminism has made its largest gains these fundamentals of security and the good life are sadly lacking. Hence it is against social systems, not men, that we launch our second woman's movement."

Molly Dexter Crawford To Marry B. E. Hopper

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Lake Crawford, of Shanarock Farm, Port Chester, N. Y., and Aiken, S. C., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Molly Dexter Crawford, to Bernard Ewing Hopper, of Detroit, son of Dr. and Mrs. John Bogert Hopper, of Ridgewood, N. J.

Miss Crawford attended the Madeira School in Washington, and has been a frequent participant in the New York, Maryland and Virginia hunting meets.

Mr. Hopper attended Cornell University, where he was a member of the class of '22.

The wedding will take place in the autumn.

Mrs. Taylor Arranging For Picnic August 8

WHITE PREDOMINATES IN GAY BEACH ATTIRE

IN LONG ISLAND, one of society's favorite seashore playgrounds is the exclusive Atlantic Beach Club, the center of summer social life. Here, healthy sun-bronzed goddesses spend most of their daylight hours on the beach, and in gay cabanas. Those who motor in just for a dip stay for luncheon, served on numerous terraces.

THE COLOR scheme at the luncheon tables is gay and bright. Many women are tanned, but equal numbers are not. This year you take your choice—either is fashionable. Off-greens are worn—perhaps because they're so kind to bronzed skins. Navy blue, all blues, made a good showing, as they always do. Also rich spicy brown. Against yellow sands, this color is magnificent. But white predominates over all, being simply grand against brown skins as well as with lily-white complexions.

LINEN SEEMS to be the most popular of all summer perennials. Make up your mind to have at least one outfit in it. We spotted a beautiful matron at one table (sketched) who wore belted jacket, dress, hat, gloves of unrelieved black linen! There was only one tiny bright kerchief of striped fabrics at the neckline for color, and this was placed there to prevent a V-burn at her throat. With her snowy hair and lovely complexion, she looked completely divine, dissipating any idea of age.

Sandy Lake Girls Camp Popular for Vacations

The Pittsburgh Girls' Club Camp at Sandy Lake is again proving the popular vacation spot for Pittsburgh business girls that it has always been. This is due largely to the attractive programs arranged by the camp director, Jean Wilson Morrison, of Sewickley. Miss Morrison has planned varied activities, including instruction in swimming, tennis and other camp sports.

Members of the club at camp this week include Stella Maloney, Belle Scheffron, Dorothy Oliffe, Kay Kleppner, Loretta Rogers and Ceil McArdle. These members spent several days at Sandy Lake during the week: Nan Fagan, Blanche Oliffe, Hedwig Ross, Mary Agnes Rettinger, Lou Straub and Eleanor Ross. Other regular campers include Evelyn Oliffe, Margaret and Eleanor Lyons, Kathryn Koller, Estelle Ross, Katherine Morgan, Esther Schmidt and Lois Tracy.

Registrations are being taken at the club rooms by Miss Gertrude Kelly, camp registrar. Miss Sara McKenzie is supervising the house at Stoneboro.

Suspicious People a Cause Of Unhappy Marriage

Does suspicion ever pay?

Will it keep a husband, or anyone else, fond and loyal and eager to give you a break?

Or will it merely insult 'em, and buy you bigger and and boggier gobs of grief?

Why am I asking these questions? Here's why!

Is this a picture of you?

If it is, you'd better Stop, Look and Listen, because—

Dear Miss Robinson:

I need your help. I am almost frantic and I don't know which way to turn. I am sure that I am losing my husband and I love him. He means more to me than anything else in life, and I just can't bear it if he stops caring for me.

We have been married for 10 years. He is 36 and I am 35. Maybe our marriage is at the "dangerous point." I don't know. But I do know that, in spite of all my efforts, he seems to be "going away" from me.

Of course I know that men do have a wandering eye, but I have always tried to watch him, and to see that no other women got a chance to interest him. I usually go down to the office in the evening to drive him home. I don't believe in letting husbands run around loose.

I have seen to it that he didn't go out without me in the evenings, either. Until lately he has never wanted to, but in the last year he has insisted on going somewhere. He says it is to a lodge he joined about a year ago, but of course I don't know that that is true. I know how men are, and I have a dreadful feeling that it isn't true.

But what can I do? I have tried to talk to him about it, and to tell him how much he means to me. Once or twice he has even objected to me driving him home, which makes me feel more than ever that there is something wrong. I told him that it seemed suspicious to me, and he got very angry—so angry that he actually swore at me.

AFRAID OF FUTURE

Then, a few months ago, his firm, a big corporation, had a sort of convention in another city. He wanted to go alone to that, but I told him that he needn't think he was going to get out of my sight that long, with a lot of other men who would probably want to go out and put on a lot of parties with heaven only knows who—so he took me. But I could see he was resentful and wanted to be rid of me. It all seemed very suspicious to me, and I live in real terror of what may happen.

There is his family, too; his sister particularly. I am convinced that she is ready, any time, to "do me in" if she can. I have told her that I knew how she felt about me and that I was watching out for her.

Oh, it is all terrible! I feel that I am utterly alone and everyone is against me. I am very sensitive and I can't bear disloyalty. It is just simply breaking my heart. Please, please help me. What shall I do? How can I keep him from cheating on me? MYRTLE.

So you're afraid you're losing him, are you? The chances are just about 100 to nothing that you're right sister!

And if he goes you deserve it! For you've certainly wished this grief on yourself.

UNJUST SUSPICIONS

No man with a particle of self-respect would stand very long for the sort of deal you're giving this man—or continue to admire the woman who gave it.

Love? You don't know the meaning of it! You're selfish to the core—and so filled with Nasty Ideas that you're plain poison.

Sensitive? How about other people? Have you ever thought of their feelings? Would you like to be insulted—called vile names, accused of foul crimes when you were innocent? Of course you wouldn't. Yet constantly, by your suspicions, you insult everyone else—brand them as guilty of abominable deeds—wreck their pride and happiness.

And you "can't bear disloyalty?" But the most immoral philanderer couldn't be more disloyal than you are! Without a particle of evidence you are ready to condemn your husband and wreck his reputation.

Personally I don't believe that you or your tribe ever deserve a good man or his love. But if you really have the makings of love for him and want to hold him—here's a tip.

Give him a break and he'll give you one. Honor him and you'll get honor in return. Have faith in him and he'll do his darndest to justify that faith.

And if he doesn't? If he is, at heart, the rotter you think he is—then what good will heckling do anyway? How do you expect to stop him by making him hate the very thought of you?

'THE GIRL WHO WANTED TO BE ALONE'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Beautifully and nautically arrayed, curled, already acquiring a light biscuit tan, perfectly presented for a beach-appearance, equipped with the wherewithal for retouching the picture with red and cream and "shadow," and the delicate interludes that are supposed to come with a mild smoke, she longed for the presence in the homely flesh of the most unhandsome young man she knew! She had lasted two days in the solitude she had wanted.

The girl who "wanted to be alone!" She discovered in 24 hours that plain John, with the freckles, the shyness, the slow speech that never got into its stride until the race was almost over, the blond lashes and the rooster lock that sprang up on his crown in spite of hair-tonic, would be a gift from Heaven were he to come ambling down the beach into this vast aloneness of hers.

What was the use of a tres chic swim-suit if absolutely nobody but one lone sea-gull with a plaintive cry, and a clam, saw it?

Where the real joy in little rows of sausage curls if there was no eye to linger on their sheen with masculine appreciation? In a pretty face with blue eyes like clear lakes if none looked into them save the lovely but impersonal sky? Why go down to the sands of the sea, a picture with the very latest accessories in the way of still life, suit of foam-white, rug of Zuave-red with Nile-green flowers, sandals of violet, et cetera, et cetera, and never be seen for hours on end?

The girl decided she had been mistaken in her dear desire. That she DIDN'T want to be at the end of nowhere right away from everybody, "faraway," "alone," "solitary," "completely remote." The sea was too big and vasty. The cry of the gull too lonely. The sands too still. The surf too loud. The sky too empty.

Wasn't it Goethe who warned one to be cautious what they wished for, LEST THEY GET IT? How sure we humans are of what we long for. And many times if it should come—literally—we would shrink and call on Heaven to take it back again!

NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

An Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently I met a friend who lives several miles from my home. She extended an invitation for me to visit her and when I accepted by telling her that I would be glad to visit her if she would name a definite day, she replied that I should send her a card telling her when I could come. I told her that since I was at leisure every day (and she said that she was in the same position) that it was unnecessary for me to send her a card, and that since we met, I insisted that it was up to her to tell me at that time just when it would be convenient for her to have me.

My contention is—that such an invitation is not at all cordial and one which I was justified in not accepting.

Kindly let me know as quickly as possible your idea in this matter, as the question is coming up again very shortly. B.

While I do agree with you that it would be easier for both you and your hostess-to-be if she were definite and direct about the date of her invitation, still if you feel that she really is sincere in her offer of hospitality, and if you really wish to go, it is a very simple thing to do as she suggested. Especially since she makes no limit as to days or time. Your hostess is either one of those vague people who find it difficult to pin themselves down to a definite engagement, or else keeps open house, always ready to receive her friends and dispense hospitality. If you want to go on the terms of naming your own day and hour, by all means accept her invitation. After your first visit, you'll know more definitely what her vagueness as to time means. And you'll know whether or not you wish to accept her invitation again.

Without Escorts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please advise me if it is considered improper for two young ladies, dressed formally, to go out in the evening without escorts?

H.

No, this is not improper. It often is done, has to be done under certain circumstances, and the circumstances demand a very definite dignity.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Proper Step in the Bidding

Mr. Reynold E. Luhn, of Holyoke, Mass., has submitted what he says was one of the most interesting hands of Bridge he ever played and has asked for comment on the bidding. The hand was played in a social game in Springfield, Mass.

East, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

♠ K 5
◇ K Q 2
♣ A Q 10 8 4

North / West / East / South

♠ A 10
♡ K Q 10 8 5 2
♣ K 7 3 2

The actual bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♡	Pass	2 ♣
Pass	6 ♣	Pass	Pass
Pass

Mr. Luhn states that his opponents criticised his bidding as preventing a Grand Slam because no opportunity was afforded for the exchange of information regarding South's void in diamonds and the fit in hearts. His reason for immediately jumping his partner's bid of two clubs to six was that inasmuch as North had failed to make a Forcing bid of seven would be an extremely hazardous undertaking as North's hand could be much weaker. Mr. Luhn is entirely correct in this reasoning. The bidding of the hand should have followed quite a different course. In my opinion it should have been as follows:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♡	Pass	3 ♣ (1)
Pass	3 ♡ (2)	Pass	5 ♡ (3)
Pass

1—Certainly North's hand with a fit in hearts and 4 honor tricks is strong enough for a Forcing Takeout. Any lesser bid fails to picture the tremendous wealth of honors and the fit of the hand.

2—South now discloses rebid strength in the heart suit.

3—Here even six hearts would not be a serious overbid, the only danger being that South might have two small spades and that a spade Opening might conceivably bring disaster.

4—South has means of knowing things about the hand that he cannot convey to his partner. He knows that the combined hands can contain no losing diamonds. His partner's bid of five hearts practically assures the solidity of the heart suit and thus upon South's established hearts losing cards in other suits in the North hand may be discarded. With this information South cannot do less than bid for a Grand Slam.

Bridge players should realize that there is nothing to be lost by the exchange of information which may be vital either to the reaching of the correct contract or to the making of the contract after it has been bid. North's failure to utilize a Forcing Takeout with a hand of such tremendous honor strength was the direct cause of the North and South partnership failing to reach a Grand Slam, which, of course, can be made easily.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Neither side vulnerable.
The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Double	Redouble	?

You, East, hold:

♠ J 9 8 ♡ 8 4 2 ◇ J 9 5 ♣ 10 6 4 3

What do you bid?

Answer: Two clubs. Under the Culbertson System, and, for that matter, practically any other Contract Bridge bidding system now in use, a pass over an adverse Redouble is a Penalty Pass and shows, at the very least, that the partner of the Doubler is willing to allow the hand to be played at the redoubled contract. The partner of the Doubler should disregard the intervening Redouble and take out—the weaker the hand, the greater necessity for a Takeout. Two clubs is the only bid that the East hand offers.

Given in Marriage

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

All Hopes for an Early Marriage Are Shattered

Several times in my life I have had to repress the impulse to grab a foolishly acting boy, and slap or shake, as my mother-in-law would say "some sense into him." But never have I felt so strong a yearning for such action as I did when Noel, through stiff, white lips, voiced his approval of his father's plan to send Mary to Paris for a year's study.

I knew that, even while the boy was saying practically "Yes, yes," with his voice, everything inside him was crying out passionately "No! No! She must not go away from me." But with what Lillian calls "the yen of the young for self-sacrifice," he was heroically suppressing his own longing for her, in order that she might have what seemed so glittering a prospect for her.

But my heart sank to my boots in commiseration for Noel, as I realized what his Quixotic little speech would mean to Mary. Combining the pride of Lucifer with a keen sensitiveness that few realized, so clever is she in camouflaging her emotions with flippant persiflage, I knew that my scheme of thwarting Philip Veritzen by engineering Mary's marriage to Noel before the time his father had set for her sailing was wrecked before it had left the pier.

Unless— But I had no chance now for hedging or speculation. Mary was speaking, a joyous lilt in her voice, her eyes sparkling, her cheeks flushed. If ever a girl presented a picture of long-deferred wish realized it was Mary, and I sighed for Noel as I listened to her.

HIDES PAIN

Noel had committed the unpardonable sin in the lexicon of love—expressed willing acquiescence in something which would take his beloved away from him for a year. And Mary was out to punish him in the most effective way she could manage.

"I thought you would feel that way about it, Noel" she said. "It's awfully sweet of you to realize what it will mean to me. I wanted you to be the first to know, of course."

"Thank you, Mary. I appreciate that." Noel patiently was putting every ounce of his willpower into his determination to play the game.

"I wouldn't do anything else," Mary said, looking at him with wide open guileless eyes, and I saw the devilishly clever manner with which she meant to hide the searing pain which was hers at Noel's apparent willingness to let her go.

"And, of course, you know," she said, "that I wouldn't go a step if you didn't approve. But—I'll tell you a secret. I was scared stiff lest you or Auntie Madge would find some objection. I'd have played up, of course, but—oh, I'm awfully glad you see it my way. It has been the dream of my life to live in Paris. Just imagine! Paris!"

BITTERNESS EVIDENT

The sound that Lillian gave at this was too strong to be a sniff. It might be termed a lady-like snort, and I knew that she had reached the limit of her endurance.

"Just what do you think Paris is going to be like, Mary?" she asked. "I know those rosy dreams. I've had 'em. And if you were going over with a lot of other young things, or on your honeymoon, or something like that, you'd probably realize 'em.

"But have you any idea how deadly dull it's going to be for you in the home of a French family of high social position? To them you'll be a 'jeune fille,' and God help you if you do not prove to them the rest of their stock phrase, 'tres bien eleve'. You'll have to watch your step, also your eyes and your lips, every second of your time. And will you be bored?"

"No, I won't." Mary tossed her head wilfully. "I'll love every second of it. And then think what such training will do for me! I'll come back speaking French like nobody's business, and will I know how to play an aristocratic role? That's what Mr. Veritzen wants most, I guess—to make a lady of me."

For a second her bitterness broke through her careful camouflage, and her voice was raucous, her smile sardonic. But the next instant she had recovered herself.

"I'm going to love it," she reiterated stubbornly.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Care of the Expectant Mother

A recent announcement of the Maternity Center Association of New York tells of a campaign to make motherhood safe. This admirable society is particularly interested in the welfare of expectant mothers. It aims to supply important information regarding medical care, diet and rest, so essential for normal results and safety. I hope everyone will co-operate with this worthy organization.

Dr. Copeland

No one will deny that motherhood has been made safer by improved methods of surgery, mechanical methods, anesthesia and other health saving measures. The introduction of the so-called "prenatal care," medical attention given the expectant mother before confinement, has accomplished gratifying results. It is a well established fact that the ease of a confinement is usually determined by the general care and medical attention given before the birth of the baby.

When I began the practice of medicine, little consideration was given to the early care of the expectant mother. In fact, in many instances, the physician was not called until the very last moment, or to give advice if some complication developed. Today with periodic visits to the doctor, X-ray examinations and repeated laboratory tests, dangerous complications are rarely encountered.

This prenatal care has helped to reduce the high and frightful mortality rate of former years. It enables the physician to discover danger signals and in most instances to prevent serious accidents. Abnormal findings give the physician ample time to take the necessary precautions against complications. The physician watches the patient's progress, makes the necessary measurements, outlines the diet, exercise and clothing, and uses other measures that insure the best of health for the mother and expected child.

It is only when these simple procedures are overlooked or neglected that the unforeseen calamities of pregnancy occur. Bear in mind that many of the serious complications of motherhood can be prevented.

Every prospective mother should receive this care. Medical attention during the prenatal period is just as important as it is after the birth of the child. Indeed it is imperative. If it is impossible to engage the services of a good private physician, I advise the expectant mother to consult with the local health authorities or visit a maternity clinic where this advice and care will be given.

Sling-Shots Discarded

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

It came as an amazing thought to me, this word from a reader, this question, "What can a person do with a crowd of boys who kill birds with stones and sling-shots?"

It was amazing because for a long time I haven't seen any boys molesting birds. Yet, I suppose that there are boys in this world who do it.

In reply, I should, first of all, say that sling-shots and guns are dangerous playthings for any lads to use and that those toys and their like should be absolutely prohibited and replaced by constructive playthings that are without the element of danger, either to outside objects or the boys themselves.

As I remember back to the few cases of bird-shooting I've heard about, one concerning my mother comes to mind. Mother taught school and encountered this problem. Her method of correcting it was:

She corralled the offending boys—they were the bigger, rougher boys of the school. It was just before summer vacation and her classes had laboriously built bird houses and the janitor had put them up. The janitor shook his head. The school principal shook her head. They wouldn't last two weeks after school was out. The big boys would destroy them. But they didn't! Mother called a meeting of the older boys who were feared, told them how hard the younger children had worked on the bird houses and that those children were too small to watch over them, but that she expected the big boys to do so. She asked them to fill the water pans, to watch over the bird occupants—gave them full responsibility over the birds for the summer. And those boys came up to bat like little sportsmen.

Care for anything—human being or animal—brings love with it. And to the mothers of boys who molest birds, I'd suggest, during the winter especially, that the dependence upon us for food and sometimes water, when all outdoor water has turned to ice, carries a responsibility to watch over the birds. Boys will enjoy painting the top of an old garbage can and putting it on a high pole, enjoy putting bits of suet and crumbs in it.

In a magazine article I saw recently a suggestion for feeding troughs for birds which mentioned half of a cocoanut shell strung from a tree limb. That sounds practical. Have your boy keep the feeding pans filled, fresh water available and take away the sling shots and guns. Give him illustrated books on birds—and you can easily create an interest, an affection for birds which will preclude any idea of annoying or hurting the child's feathered companions.

Household Hints

A shabby pram hood will be improved by the occasional application of equal parts olive oil and vinegar.

Pure silk garments will have an excellent gloss after washing if a little methylated spirit is added to the rinsing water.

To clean curtains over doorways use a stiff brush dipped in warm water. Brush quickly and you will be pleased at the results.

Empty spools should never be thrown away in a house where there are small children. The creeping baby enjoys rolling them on the floor and chasing after them. Strung together on a stout string, he likes to handle them and bang them against hard surfaces. The 4 or 5-year-old will find them just the thing to use for smokestacks and chimneys.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Legs too thin? Try flexing the muscles to fill them out and to make leg contour more presentable. Sit in a straight backed chair, feet flat on the floor, body erect, lift one foot with a hard muscle pull as if a heavy weight were attached to it. Relax, back to first position, repeat. Rest on a low stool, lift one foot, send it around in circles five times; a one-minute rest, make circles with the other foot. Lifting on the toes and high kicking will develop the feminine shanks.

Easy enough to give the scalp a friction at any time. Spread fingers and thumbs over the back of the head, thumbs at the nape. Hold thumbs stationary, use finger tips to move the flesh about. Place thumbs on temples, fingers on the crown, do more rotating. The hair lives on the blood supply, friction awakens veins, arteries, capillaries. Brushing has no effect upon the abundance of the glorious crown; it grooms the hair, removes surface dust, promotes luster.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Confession

I like to fashion many lives for me;
I relish with naive delight, variety
In things.. There is so little time in life
For change. But let me tell you all I want to be:
No pious maid—no nun with gentle face
And quiet hands. I'd take my place
As wise sophisticate whose pencilled brows
Accent a life hard-lived. I would embrace
The shadow of a girl with brazen dress
In vivid hue and feel the fond caress
Of some young lover for a night or two.
Such hedonistic yearnings I confess.

But I shall dress in gray and well behave
—Marthe Lee Lorenz.

Capsule Criticism

Tallulah Bankhead tells them on herself, so there! One London critic, covering her performance in "The Green Hat," said in part:

"She neither walks, talks nor acts like a member of a county family—but more like a county jail."

Another reviewer, who went in for the flip crack reported:

Incidentally

It was Burns Mantle who twitted Ann Andrews, one of the better actresses, when she appeared a little plump in "The Hottentot."

"She not only sits down wisely," said the critic, "but not too well."

Gag

Marc Lachman vows that he overheard it on the Uniter Artists lot. Two movie executives were babbling about a script by Washington Irving. One of them decided it had value for the screen.

"Send a wire to New York," he instructed, "and get Mr. Irving out here to supervise it."

"Don't be such a fool," whispered the other exec, "Washington Irving has been dead nearly two years!"

Prediction

The Held You Say!

"Peekskill, N. Y.: Dear W. W.: Your paragraph about the chorus girls who were thrown out of work because of the premature closing of 'Strike Me Pink' struck me punk, too.

"If you can find nice girls who want to spend a few days in the country, send them on two at a time—I'll treat. I love my husband and baby, don't send home-wreckers, please.—Anna Held, Jr."

Ouch!

Champ Clark, Speaker of the House for so many years, was expert at crushing people with a squelch. One day a political enemy died and Clark was asked if he would attend the funeral.

"No," he said, "but I approve of it."

Very Likely

It was the late Ambrose Bierce who asserted that the Greeks and Romans of old gave their victors laurel wreaths to keep their heads from swelling.

Add Human Beings

We are indebted to John Terence McGovern for this "Street Scene" as recorded in "Diogenes Discovers Us." A little Italian street musician had selected the curb in front of St. Patrick's Cathedral on Vth avenue to render "The Wearing of the Green." All his notes were sour and one or two missed fire completely, but the tune was unmistakable. Worshippers passed in and out of the cathedral, but one had dropped a coin in his cup.

Then up the avenue approached a serene and compelling figure. Paderewski had just finished a recital where thousands had sat entranced under the magic of his music. His attention was attracted by the little Italian and his pathetic enterprise. Here was another artist, whose recital was not yet finished. Paderewski extracted a bill from his wallet, which he placed in the tincup.

How Embarrassing!

Dolly Gann related it for the magazines. A breakfast guest at the White House during the Coolidge regime was antonished to see Cal pour his coffee from the cup into the saucer. Not to be outdone, the guest followed suit.

The President added cream and sugar, in the saucer, and tasted the mixture with his spoon. The guest was imitating this—when the President set the saucer on the floor—for the dog!

Old, but Funny

Then there is the typical tale of Cal Coolidge, which even his admirers relate. One day he walked in a little weary and Mrs. Coolidge said:

"Where have you been?"

"Church," said Cal.

"Was there a sermon and what was the subject?"

"Sin," said Cal.

"What did the preacher have to say about it?"

"He was against it."

Newspaperman Stuff

". . . Funny about that expression—high hat," soliloquys Mark Hellinger in the New York Mirror, "I wonder what it means, exactly? I think it was Winchell who first popularized the phrase as a slang slogan. Maybe he'll put me wise."

We don't remember popularizing it. But Hellinger appears to be concerned about people calling him "high hat" on occasion, which he isn't at all. He groans because someone said he was—when he refused an alleged favor.

He needn't groan the next time. He might borrow our pet squelch for those who say:

"Are you gettin' high-hat?"

The stifler is:

"No, we've always been that way!"

Press Agentrash?

The same commentator weeps in this manner:

"Only last week I sat in a night club with two of the newer Broadway columnists. I listened in amazement as they boasted of their position in the world and the huge scoops they scored."

Oh, don't be so plural.

Love Winner In Warner

By WILLIAM T. SCHOYER

Galloping hooves lead romance a merry chase, round the track, down the stretch, only to get nosed out under the wire in the Warner's film of a betting plumber, "Don't Bet on Love." The plumber, Lew Ayres, of course, is in love, with Ginger Rogers. But what's he to do when his lady friend won't marry him on his race-track income?

He promises first not to play the ponies, putting some money in the bank to the delight of Ginger and his hard-working father. But suddenly the marriage is off, when the bride finds the honeymoon has been planned for Saratoga.

In a huff Lew goes to Saratoga anyway, taking his milk-wagon-driver pal, Tom Dugan. And the luck breaks, and the money rolls in until he's famous and playing around with a blonde, and beating the world—except that Ginger won't answer his letters.

But you can tell that blonde means trouble, and it comes in a law suit. Lew is forced into some high-powered larceny to get out of that. He wants more money, he buys a stable, he tries to fix a race. On the eve of the event he finds some other bettors are fixing it another way.

Race-track boys, the others are a tough gang, and it means hot water, win or lose. And sure enough, Lew lands in the hot water and on his uppers—but with the decision that there are better things in life than horses, namely, plumbing and Ginger Rogers.

There's also a short comedy with a number of laughs.

Jolly Couple Get Laughs In Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Honest and hearty laughter is the principal ingredient of the picture at the Penn—"Mama Loves Papa"—in which Charlie Ruggles is married to Mary Boland, and they stay married though Lilyan Tashman entices him to drink many flagons of giggle water.

Mr. Seibel

The comedy is as clean and sweet as marshmallows and talcum powder. Charlie is a humorist who laughs at his own jokes, and Mary is a dumb-belle who never sees them till next week. But they are both so adorable in their idiocy that the audience is kept laughing. This is one of those occasions when the audience really has something to laugh at.

When Charlie loses his job, after Professor Pugh has lectured wives on how to help their husbands to success, he unexpectedly becomes park commissioner. But an honest park commissioner lasts only two days, and then Charlie unexpectedly gets his old job back with an increase.

In working out this simple story, Charlie puts on a dress suit when he was merely willing to take a bath for Mary, and Mary meanders through swell society making many fox-passes. It is joyous, savory and wholly delightful entertainment, in which George Barbier and Walter Catlett help with more good comedy.

Another "Our Gang" farce, of which a boarding school is the scene, helps to keep everybody in happy humor. Even the stern critic felt a tiny glow of human kindness in his cardiac region.

Rackets Hot In Davis

By MARGARET RUSSELL

The rackets get an airing in a double bill in the Davis and Sheridan Square this week. The cloak and suit racket, or how to get the buyer's signature on the dotted line, and racketeering in general, from the medicine show up, or how one crook will out-crook another crook for a beautiful girl.

In "She Had to Say Yes," Loretta Young is not Nellie the beautiful cloak model. She is a respectable stenographer who never tasted champagne, smoked a cigaret or went to a night club. Never, that is, until she went out with the out-of-town cloak and suit buyers. When one of the buyers finds she is "different," he becomes "different," too. But Loretta doesn't say "yes" until the very last minute, when the buyer's intentions prove strictly honorable. Lyle Talbot is the buyer.

Rackets are rackets "From Arizona to Broadway," with James Dunn, Joan Bennett and Herbert Mundin. Joan's brother, a small town banker, gets himself swindled by some city slickers. Jimmy, trouble-shooter for a carnival medicine show outfit, and a smoothy himself, decides to get the money back, not for the little lady, but for himself and his three crazy pals.

There's slick work afoot and a big fight at the opening of a musical show. Funny thing, two New York gangs fight it out, not with guns, but with their fists. Maybe they think it's sissified to use guns. Our hero, his pals and the gal get out of the scramble with the twenty grand. When Jimmy's three helpers demand their "cut," Jimmy goes soft and tells the mugs their "cut" is the lady's thanks. Jimmy's "cut," of course, is the lady herself.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:
SALINAS, Cal., July 22.

Say, I got kinder mixed up on my per cent in the paper yesterday. I said liquor tax should be 50 per cent. Well, I am going to have to raise you another 50. I meant 100 per cent.

Will Rogers

You don't mind that little raise, do you? Say, those old moonshiners in Tennessee come pretty near protecting their industry in Thursday's election, didn't they?

What did I tell you about that little one-eyed Oklahoma boy? He is a hawk, ain't he? He holds the doubles and singles championship now. If he ever decides to make up a foursome to go round, I will take out a ticket with him.

This is Salinas' big day, the king of California rodeos. Here is where you see the old California boys with the long rawhide riatas. Beautiful flight here by the seaboard air line. And saw all the beautiful ranches.

Yours, WILL.

Just Chit-Chat Between Scenes

RICARDO CORTEZ, LORETTA YOUNG AND ANDY DEVINE TALK THINGS OVER ON "MIDNIGHT MARY" SET IN STUDIO

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

If

ABOUT 90 years ago, when I was a mere boy and columns were what held up the front porches of colonial residences, a visitor at our house tested my intelligence (or lack of it) by asking me to name the longest word in the dictionary. I named several, some of which I couldn't pronounce today. One, I recall, was antidisestablishmentarianism. When I stopped for breath, he spoke.

"You're wrong, son," the visitor said. "The longest word in the dictionary is 'if.'"

I didn't get the point then. I was much too young to realize that everything in this world, including our very lives, hinges on that 2-letter word. As a matter of fact, I thought the visitor was a trifle cracked.

But nothing, to my knowledge, ever proved the truth of his assertion more than the life of a man who was endowed with the most unusual of names, John Smith.

If John Smith had remained honest in later life he may never have had the opportunity to do good for others. If he had been bad in early life the whole scheme of his later years may have been changed. If he hadn't been fired. . . If he hadn't got drunk . . . If he hadn't . . . If . . . If . . . If . .

In school he was quite an ordinary pupil. His marks were average and he was never summoned to the principal's office for being too bright or too dumb. John Smith merely plodded along with his classmates, struggling night and day to absorb knowledge.

When he graduated, Mr. Burroughs, the school principal, spoke to John Smith for a moment in private. Burroughs was a young man, very studious and extremely honorable.

"Smith," he began. "I like you. You're a good boy. I know I won't be hurting your feelings when I say that you are by no means the smartest boy I've ever met. But by far you're the most likeable.

"Smith, I think you'll succeed in life. I don't know why I should be telling you this, except possibly because I think you've got the stuff to make good: Character, honor and ambition.

"Before you leave to make your way in the world, I want you to take this counsel with you: Always be honest. And try to select honorable men as your friends. If you follow that advice, you can't fail.

"Goodbye, Smith. And good luck."

John Smith never forgot those words. Never. They stayed with him throughout his checkered career. He started off by getting himself a little job in a big corporation. If he found chances to be dishonest, he spurned them. And he had no friends because the men around him were not strictly honorable.

Thus he kept faith with his motto. But, as time went on, it bore no fruit. Year after year, he remained in the small job with small salary. Others, he noted, went on to better jobs, and more money. Some of them, he knew, were not honorable. About the rest, he had his doubts.

John Smith did well, I think. He stuck to that measly little job for 10 long years. Long enough to see newcomers in the place pass him by and become his bosses. After 10 years, John Smith's life changed its course overnight.

He was fired. Why? I don't know. No reason was given. The blue slip merely said that, beginning tomorrow, John Smith's name would be stricken from the payroll. Thus the most honorable of young men found himself out in the cold.

From then on, one job followed another. Each time he got one, John Smith labored long and honestly to make good. But each time his employers managed to get rid of him.

Then one night, he did what to him was a sacrilege. He walked into a saloon and ordered a shot of straight rye, realizing that he couldn't fly on one wing, he ordered another. It didn't take many to knock him under the nearest cuspidor.

Getting drunk got him a job. He was out cold when Tim Murphy walked in. And Tim not only owned the saloon, but was a ward leader as well, and a power in politics. Old Tim was strangely attracted to John Smith. He forced a glass of something between the lips of our hero, and rubbed his wrists.

When Smith was able to talk again, old Tim took him into the back room and talked earnestly for 10 minutes. He asked his name, his address, why he drank the booze, would he promise never to do it again, did he want a job, and a dozen other things.

Then, when John's head cleared old Tim handed him five dollars.

"Son," he said quietly, "you look an awful lot like somebody who once meant a great deal to me. He was a fine boy, and would have made a great man had he lived. But the Lord's will was that he should die, and I'm fool enough to believe that there may be a bit of him in you.

"Come in tomorrow, ready for work."

Thus, in a saloon, John Smith got his real start in life. He tended bar by day and fraternized with politicians at night. And as the years rolled by, Tim Murphy continually advanced him along political row. When Murphy died, John was looked upon as his successor.

John Smith became a new man. He tossed aside his old principles and m[illegible]ed with any characters who might be of help to him in his [illegible]ture. With the arrival of prohibition, he reached the definite conclusion that honesty was not the best policy. And he made a fortune by close association with crooked politicians, bootleggers and gangsters.

Today the man is a millionaire many times over. He gives away a great deal of his money because he is tickled by the homage that charity brings him. Everybody knows the money is tainted, but nobody turns it down.

It was only a short time ago that he contributed lavishly toward the creation of an administration building for his old school—the school he had never forgotten. Principal Burroughs, now an old man on the verge of retirement, begged him to attend the dedication ceremonies. On the promise that he would not be called upon for a speech, he attended.

But they crossed him. Burroughs, his voice trembling with pride, introduced John Smith as the school's most successful graduate. The students called loudly for a speech. And Smith, maker of money via the iron fist, was compelled to arise.

He cleared his throat. As a speaker, he was brutal. He looked out at the sea of faces. And then, from out of the past, a memory returned to him. He spoke mechanically.

"Years ago," he said, "your principal gave me the best advice in the world. I can only repeat it to you now. Always be honest, and try to select honorable men as your friends. If you follow that advice, you can't fail."

Heart Whole, Gary Says

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, July 22.—Routed out of his silence by persistent rumors, Gary Cooper told me something today that should please a lot of his feminine fans.

He has no plans to marry, and is not even in love.

The tall star, whose reticence about his reported affairs of the heart has often been mistaken for confirmation, particularly is impatient with those reports linking his name to that of the Countess Di Frasso.

"They are most unfair to her," he said. "The Countess Di Frasso is already married and, as a good friend of hers, I haven't heard her say a thing about getting a divorce. As a matter of fact, I believe she intends to return to Europe for the latter part of the summer."

Cooper insists that he not only is heart-whole now, but has been for a number of years.

"My career," he says, "is going to keep me busy enough. The next few years will be critical, and it wouldn't be fair to ask a woman to share a life so divided."

Asked when he might consider marriage, the star replied:

"Not until the time when I make only two pictures a year, or preferably one. And, of course, I'll have to find the girl."

TuneComedy On Stanley Screen

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Summer entertainment is supposed to be light, and in that classification stands "Melody Cruises," current attraction in the Stanley, with a cast headed by Charles Ruggles, Phil Harris, Greta Nissen and Helen Mack. It is a comedy in a musical setting in which Mr. Ruggles provides most of the laughs. He has quite a little assistance from Chick Chandler, whose part of assistant steward on an ocean liner gives him a chance to turn to his own financial advantage an unpleasant situation in which Mr. Ruggles finds himself.

Aside from the work of these two the acting of the cast may be dismissed briefly with the all-embracing word "adequate." Charlie and Chick stand out in a plot that is as complicated and meandering as an old-time melodrama, the difference being that all of the involved action tends to comedy.

Briefly Harris boasts that he wants to be ever single, so he fixes it up so his pal, Ruggles, will break up any romance that threatens to become too serious. To keep Charlie on the job, he sends a letter to his wife to be opened only in case of his marriage. It's one Charlie wouldn't care to have his wife read. Then Harris proceeds to get himself engaged. It is funny but not extremely hilarious.

For those who get a kick out of novelty of production and photographic tricks there is an extra reward in this picture. The musical sequences are cleverly introduced, being elaborate and quite pleasing.

Balbo's Hop On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Pictures of the arrival in New York of Gen. Balbo's Italian air armada are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. From every conceivable place Hearst Metrotone News photographed the spectacle as the 24 ships flew down the Hudson River, over the towering skyscrapers, across the city to settle safely at anchorage in Jamaica Bay. The Globe Trotter describes the history-making episode.

Another subject of Italy's might comes from Naples, where Premier Mussolini reviews his navy. A dramatic touch is given to the scene as a destroyer fires a torpedo that explodes against a cliff.

(Note—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedules, it is possible that some of the subjects in the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.)

RELIEF PITCHERS OUTDOING STARTERS

FAR FROM HOLDING Waite Hoyt responsible for the loss of yesterday's tilt with the Giants, a contest so important that its slipping away left the Pirates at the original distance of four games behind the league leaders, whereas a victory would have put the locals within two games of first place, home fans had only sympathy for the veteran hurler in the tough breaks that caused a fine job of relief pitching to go to waste.

Waite Hoyt

Nor was Gus Suhr to be criticized for the bad throw to second base that opened the way for a promised Pittsburgh victory to be turned into a defeat. The play that Suhr attempted was the proper one to keep the tying run out of the scoring zone, and a play at which Gus failed on only one other occasion this year. Errors are part of baseball, and Suhr merely was unfortunate in making one while trying to do the right thing.

The slip that really caused the damage was the base on balls that Steve Swetonic handed to Pitcher Herman Bell, who has a batting average of .188, in the fourth inning with two out, a man on second, and the Bucs leading by three runs. A triple and a single followed and the score was tied.

George Gibson's relief hurlers have been doing better work than the starters, Larry French alone excepted. It was Heinie Meine who saved Thursday's game in a rescue role, and Hoyt's excellent work yesterday was only a continuance of what he had done in several earlier games. Waite's relief pitching of late has not been surpassed in either league. Too bad his efforts yesterday were not rewarded with the victory they deserved, a victory that would have given the Bucs three of the first four Giant games, whereas if they fail to do better than split today's doubleheader they will get only an even break in the series, and an even break in the six games will mean no gain at all on the leaders. Incidentally, the ball played by both clubs in the series has been far below the quality to be expected of two teams supposed to be big league pennant contenders.

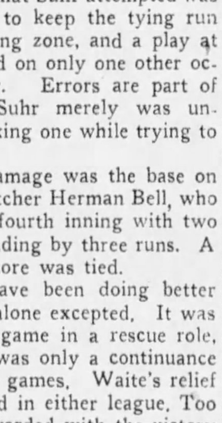
OLD JACK QUINN not only passed out of the major leagues when he drew his latest release from the Reds, but dropped out of organized baseball altogether. The veteran spitballer has gone back to the sandlot ranks in which he used to pitch before he started on his first league job in Connellsville 30 years ago. Quinn has hooked up with a semi-pro outfit in the Detroit Baseball Federation.

And, of all things, though he is 50 years old and they call him Old Man River and Rock of Ages, the team with which he has signed is styled the American Boy Club. Jack will pitch his first game in his new company tomorrow afternoon against the Skrzycki team.

OSCAR ECKHARDT and other sluggers in the Pacific Coast League who wonder why they are not being bought up for trials in the major loops can find the answer in the reports made by scouts to their employers that a jack rabbit ball is in use in the far West.

According to the ivory hunters, the big batting averages on the coast are due to a lively ball, and the worth of a player cannot be measured by his hitting figures. The big league magnates, therefore, are refusing to take a chance on Coast players at fancy prices.

APPARENTLY YOUNG PLAYERS in general in the Coast League are not nearly as good as glowing reports of their work have made them out to be. Scouts who had expected to find a lot of promising timber there were keenly disappointed. For instance, the agent of one big league club who made a trip to the Coast for the special purpose of picking up a catcher, has just reported that though he looked over the entire league the best backstop he could find in the lot was none other than Larry Woodall. The latter was released by Detroit in 1928 after seven years of service and is now 39 years old. So there will be no bidding for any of the younger ones.



Bucky Harris

MID-SEASON MANAGERIAL changes in the American League may not end with the dropping of Roger Peckinpaugh and Bill Killefer by Cleveland and St. Louis. In Detroit the mob is after the scalp of Bucky Harris, and the Tiger pilot may be the next leader in the junior circuit to lose his post, if the Red Sox retain Marty McManus.

Baseball men think Harris has done a fairly good job in Jungletown, though he never has had a first-division club in his five years there. It is pointed out that he got the better of the deal for Fred Marberry and has developed fine young players in Rogell, Stone, Walker, Rowe, Owen and Greenberg.

CRITICS OF HARRIS, however, contend that Owner Frank

U. S. NETTERS TOP BRITONS IN DOUBLES

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, AUTEUIL, France, July 22.—(AP.)—A brilliant rally after trailing 1-4 on games enabled George Martin Lott, Jr., and John Van Ryn, United States doubles team, to pull out the first set against Fred Perry and George Patrick Hughes, of England, 8-6, today in the inter-zone Davis Cup tennis play. It was the first set captured by the American side in three matches.

Flashing greater speed and power, the Americans won the second set at 6-4, and the third at 6-1, to give the United States the doubles victory and its first triumph in the series.

The Americans had their backs to the wall as a result of the straight-set defeats which Ellsworth Vines, Jr., American champion, and Wilmer Allison sustained at the hands of Bunny Austin and Perry, respectively, yesterday.

The Britons need only one more victory to annex the series and qualify to meet France in the challenge round next week.

BELGIUM-HUNGARY SPLIT

BRUSSELS, July 22.—The Davis Cup team of Belgium and Hungary split even in the opening singles duels yesterday of the 1934 preliminary eliminations. Lacroix, of Belgium, defeated R. De Kehrling, 6-1, 7-5, 6-2, and L. De Borman succumbed to Garbrowitz, of Hungary, 6-0, 7-5, 6-2.

DENMARK BEATS GREECE

COPENHAGEN, July 22.—Denmark defeated Greece, 4 to 1, in the early part of the 1933 Davis Cup play yesterday. Jacobsen defeated Dydis, 6-1, 6-3, 6-4, and Ulrich won over Stalios, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3, to clinch the round. Greece's only victory came in the doubles on Thursday.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE FATHER OF CRAPS—The game of Craps, brought to America by Count Bernard Mandeville de Marigny, a glamorous figure in the early history of New Orleans, originally was called "Hazard." Alluding to the French nickname of Johnny Crapaud ("Frog"), the game later was known as Crapauds, and abbreviated to "craps." Marigny was responsible for what we call today the high Creole type. He was a grand seigneur, addicted to fine living, generous spending and lordly pleasure. Incidentally, he gambled away in craps the entire lordly fortune left him by his father.

NO MOVIE FOR PRIMO

HOLLYWOOD, July 22.—Primo Carnera, the new heavyweight champion, will not appear in the movies as planned. De Preem was all set to wow them on the silver screen, but the film company he was to work for gently told him there was not story available. But Max Baer, the knocker out of Max Schmeling, is due at the studio next week to begin work in a film, portraying his boxing poweress.

GAELIC BOOTERS PLAY

The Pittsburgh Gaelic football team, led by Joe Cush, a star center-half, will play the Cleveland Irish at Greenlee Field tomorrow. This will be the local team's first game prior to entering the National Gaelic Football League.

CRUCIAL SERIES CLOSES WITH DUAL BILL

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The New York Giants think they have the best chance of all National League pennant contenders, and if they cop the flag they will look back to a hot July day at Forbes Field and visualize a couple of fielding shindigs staged by Hughey Critz and Blondy Ryan in the sixth inning of a gripping fight between the Pirates and Giants. It will be the most pleasant kind of a memory for Bill Terry's boys, who will be glad to announce that the Critz-Ryan combination reeled off a couple of thrillers to win a battle of deep significance.

Terry's fighters today were warm on the subject which will be easy to recall should first honors come their way. The fielding tricks were performed yesterday at a time when the ambitious Buccos were in the midst of what looked like a drive to victory in the fourth game of a turbulent series. The Gibson Clan had taken two out of three, and another triumph might mean the lowering of the Giant morale; indeed, considering a flock of injured players, the defeat that threatened might start a big crackup of Terry's club.

STOPS RALLY

Critz' great effort was physical—the Ryan classic was a mental gem. Between them, Hughey and Blondy held what looked like a big rally to one run and the fighting Giants came through in the ninth, aided by the luck of the sport, to win a 6-5 victory.

It is the Pirate half of the sixth, folks, and the Buccos are leading by one narrow run. They are fighting furiously for a safety run which they feel will clinch the

LOCAL SWIM STARS TO DEFEND RELAY TITLE

LENORE KIGHT WINS 440, SETS MARK

NEW YORK, July 22.—(AP.)—America's newest swiming queen, 20-year-old Lenore Kight, of Homestead, Pa., today took time out from winning individual honors to help her team mates defend the 880-yard relay title in the National A. A. U. aquatic championships at Jones Beach.

Miss Kight, who jumped into prominence last year when she came close to defeating Helene Madison, had just about dominated the meet, which closes tomorrow, sweeping the free style events with victories in the 100-meter, the mile and the 440-yard. Her final appearance will be in the 880-yard swim tomorrow.

LENORE SETS RECORD

The 20-year-old Pennsylvania star climaxed her triple victory with a record smashing performance in the 440-yard yesterday, lowering Miss Madison's world mark of 5:39 2-5 to 5:33 3-5.

Before the 1932 Olympics, Miss Kight was little known in swimming circles, although she had been competing in national meets for several years. Unheralded she forced Miss Madison to her best in the Olympic trials and then came within inches of defeating the Seattle star in the 400-meter final at Los Angeles.

Eleanor Holm, of New York, who returned from Hollywood to defend her back stroke championship, shared in the record-breaking yesterday, lowering her world mark of 2:57 4-5 to 2:57 1-5, easily defeating six rivals.

MISS RAWLS DEFENDS TITLE

In the only other event on today's program, Katherine Rawls, 15-year-old Fort Lauderdale, Fla., swimmer, was to defend the second of her four crowns in the 300-meter medley. She won the springboard dive on the opening day.

Miss Kight's triple victory has placed her club first in the running for the team championship ith 15 points. The New York Women's A. C. was second with 12. Los Angeles was third, having six points, and the Community Association, of Whitinsville, Mass., fourth, with four points.

SPORT VIGNETTES

What's the matter with baseball? . . . The answer seems to be that we ought to get the people back to work and baseball will take care of itself . . . There's been a smoldering interest in the grand old game all through the hard times and it broke out like a rash when the Giants hit town, the attendance jumping from a thousand or two to 22,000 the very first day . . . Proving that the fans haven't forgotten and as soon as they get flush again they'll be out there regularly, glad to pay for the privilege of seeing the big leaguers perform.

Take it from Lou Palmer, celebrated blind former boxer, of Louisville, Jack Dempsey is a great guy . . . Lou lost his sight some years ago when he fell down a coal chute, but he never lost his cheerful optimism and he does a remarkable job of getting around the country alone, traveling in buses and visiting the places of interest . . . For a time he was in vaudeville doing a bag-punching act . . . Now he sells copies of cheerful poems he has written, lead pencils, or whatnot . . . He went over to Cincinnati when Max Baer was giving an exhibition there and was caught in the crush trying to crash the gate and sell a few pencils . . . Finally he was rescued by a firm hand, which pulled him out of the mess.

"Hey, look out—I'm blind!" he said . . . "I know it," was the answer, "you're Lou Palmer." . . . Palmer recognized the voice . . . "And you're Jack Dempsey," he thrilled . . . "I need a pencil, give me one," said Dempsey . . . "Sure, with my compliments." . . . "And take this with mine," and Dempsey placed what appeared to be a roll of paper in the blind man's hands . . . The roll proved to be all of the currency Dempsey had with him at the moment, totaling $57 . . . That's why Dempsey is Dempsey.

Al Quaill, the A. M. A. middleweight champion, is developing into a corking fighter and is a good card with the fans. . . . He'll be turning professional soon, and 'tis said he's headed for a New York debut.

James (Red) Mason is coming on from Chicago to second Jack King in his fight with Sammy Slaughter at the North Braddock Bowl next Thursday night, and incidentally, to be back in the old home town to celebrate his birthday on Wednesday . . . He writes as follows anent the latter event: "I want to be there for the twenty-sixth my birthday—sixty-some odd years old and still kicking. Some kid, eh?" . . . Yeah, some boss, eh joke? . . . A perusal of the records shows Mason was born on July 26, 1868, which will make him 65 years old . . . Some kid, eh, Red?

Speaking of birthdays, George Gibson, manager of our Pirates, is 53 years old today. . . . He was born in London, Ontario, July 22, 1880.—HARRY KECK.

P. G. A. Officials Offer Compromise

MILWAUKEE, July 22.—(AP)—The Professional Golfers' Association today stood willing to compromise with the dissatisfied members of the Ryder Cup squad but not to the extent of shifting its championship tournament to September.

The officials decided that the event would be held as scheduled, August 8-13, but recommended that the cup squad members be allowed to play without qualifying in sectional tournaments. Previously the players had said they would not compete in August because of business reasons.

The compromise offer would make it possible for Shute, the new British Open champion, and Walter Hagen to return from England in time to compete at Blue Mound Country Club and leave time for the others to take care of other business.

REGIS WOLFF VICTOR AT NEMACOLIN

By TOM BIRKS

Regis Wolff, of the Highland Country Club, former captain of the University of Pittsburgh golf team, won the Nemacolin Country Club invitation tournament, defeating Bill Kirsch, of Rolling Green Country Club, Philadelphia, in the 18-hole final round, 2 and 1, yesterday afternoon.

The popular Highlander, before winning the affair, had a torrid battle in the semi-finals in the morning with Fred Brand, Jr., of the Shannopin Country Club, the match going to the nineteenth green, where Wolff got a birdie 3 to win.

Kirsch is a long hitter, but the steady iron play of the former Pitt captain more than offset the great tee shots of the Philadelphian. Wolff never was down throughout the match.

Francis Gould, a youngster from the Indiana Country Club, won the second sixteen, defeating L. Sasso, of Chartiers Heights, 2 and 1, in the final round.

A. D. Stevens, of the Highland Country Club, won the third sixteen, defeating R. I. Carson, of Nemacolin Country Club, in the final round. The results:

First flight, semi-finals—Regis Wolff, Highland, defeated Fred Brand, Jr., Shannopin, 1 up, 19 holes; W. Kirsch, Rolling Green, defeated Tom Waggoner, Uniontown, 1 up.

Final—Wolff defeated Kirsch, 2 and 1.

Final—Gould defeated Sasso, 2 and 1.

Final—Carson defeated Goldberg, 1 up.

Consolation third flight, final—J. H. Claybaugh, Nemacolin, defeated F. M. Bailey, Waynesburg, 1 up.

James A. Fownes, chairman of the Pennsylvania state golf handicap committee, has announced that no handicap cards will be issued after Tuesday, for the one-day tourney at Oakmont next Thursday.

Guest Day, an annual affair, is being observed today at the Duquesne Golf Club. An elaborate setup of golf and other entertainment is on the program. Mayor Lyle, of McKeesport, Mayor Crawford, of Duquesne, and Burgess Cavanaugh, of Homestead, are taking part in the affair.

A team of Schenley Park golfers, 26 in all, will travel to New Castle tomorrow to play a select team of that territory at the New Castle Field Club.

EDDIE JACOBS W. VA. FINALIST

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 22.—(AP.)—Each with two legs on the three-year challenge cup in the West Virginia Open tennis championships, Eddie Jacobs, of Baltimore, and Paul Kunkle, of Cincinnati, battle it out today in the finals.

Jacobs easily disposed of Barney Welsh, the rising young Washington (D. C.) star, in the semi-finals, 6-3, 6-1; and Kunkle disposed of the veteran Sam Cohn, of Beckley, 6-2, 6-4.

In the women's finals, Miss Margaret Carspecken, of Morgantown, defending champion, meets Miss Louise Hofmeister, of Chicago, who reached the finals on the default of Miss Muriel Adams, of Indianapolis. The latter was carried from the courts with an injured knee. Miss Carspecken trounced Mrs. Dorothy Anderson, of Butler, Pa., 6-4, 6-3.

Kunkle teams with Elmer Rudy, of Baltimore, in the men's doubles finals against Eddie and Billy Jacobs. In the mixed doubles, Miss Carspecken and Sam Cohn are matched with Twink Starr, of Huntington, and Kathryn Pearson, of Houston, Tex.

Yesterday, Billy and Eddie Jacobs, brothers, defeated Frank Broida, of Pittsburgh, and W. R. Thompson, of Washington, Pa., 6-3, 6-3, in the semi-final round of the doubles play.

BASEBALL COMEDY

—By NICK ALTROCK—

WASHINGTON, July 22.—I guess Uncle Nick will have to plead guilty of counting his chickens before he lit up the incubator. Anyhow, a spell back, when our Washington club was ahead of the Yankees by a mile and a half, I sort of got to gloating about Ruppert's fossilized men. And so many sarcastic postcards came in from the Bronx, enclosing razzberries, I want Nick Altrock to make a handsome apology and retract my words. So I hereby declare that the Yanks may be dead, but they ain't buried yet. Now I hope this satisfies my irate correspondents.

Since we got back to Washington we haven't been quite so miraculous as on our recent road trip. So Griff is thinking of moving his players to Baltimore and make 'em commute to Washington every day if it's train-riding that makes 'em hit.

Contesting looms as torrid in more ways than one this afternoon as squads mixing in the Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League chase hustle into the ultimate furlong of their gallop for honors. With complete card of action listed in the bi-divisional P. T. A. loop and full bills slated for the Beaver Valley and Allegheny-Kiski Valley circuits, net arrays to the number of 36 join the battle.

In the upper sector of the local wheel, the pace-setting P. A. A. contingent, defender of the Davis Keg, faces fast opposition in meeting the University Club. With the second place Edgewood crew favored to thump College Avenue on the Suburbanite lots, the Winged Headers must register decisively over the Varsity outfit in order to maintain the strong top position advantage, as they tangle with the Edgewooders in the campaign finale a week hence.

Meanwhile, Stanton Heights, stung but not disheartened by 7-2 setback at the hands of P. A. A. several days ago, takes on Rockwood in hope of regaining a bit of lost ground. Westinghouse rounds out the Division I slate by invading Shannopin.

In the lower section, Belmont puts its titular aspirations to severe test by jaunting out the Greensburg pike for fracas with Westinghouse Seconds. As the leaders pound each other, Washington Heights, ensconced in the third notch only a match to the rear of Westinghouse, is at home to Emsworth.

Other Division II engagements involve Rockwood Reserves with Minnetonka at Verona and Bureau of Mines with College Avenue Seconds on the College-and-Walnut rectangles.

Equipoise Favored To Win Handicap

CHICAGO, July 22.—(AP.)—Equipoise, called the greatest thoroughbred on the American turf since Man o' War, goes to the post today with a crushing impost of 135 pounds, but favored to win the $10,000 Arlington handicap.

The race at a mile and a quarter, bringing together Equipoise and Gallant Sir for the first time, was expected to attract a crowd upwards of 30,000 to the Arlington Park course.

The field is made up of nine of the finest thoroughbreds in the country. The entries are: Equipoise, Gallant Sir, The Darb, Plucky Play, Dark Secret, Larranga, Kerry Patch and Watch Him.

JUNE BEEBE GOLF VICTOR

CHICAGO, July 22.—Miss June Beebe, local woman golfer, defeated Miss Rena Nelson, also of this city, in the finals of the Chicago district tourney, 6 and 5, yesterday. The victory made the third straight championship Miss Beebe has won. She also holds the Women's Western open and the Women's Western Derby.

METZ LEADER IN STATE OPEN TOURNEY

SCRANTON, Pa., July 22.—(AP.)—Faced by the super-golf of Dick Metz, Deal (N. J.) professional, who carded 140 in two par-smashing rounds, the 90 contestants remaining in the Pennsylvania State Open championship event play another 36 holes today to decide the title.

Metz's two rounds of 70—two below par for the difficult Scranton Country Club course—gave him a five-stroke advantage yesterday over his closest competitor, Felix Serafin, of Scranton. The 1931 champion went around in 73-72—145.

Seven other golfers were not more than three points behind Serafin, each of them equaling or bettering par or one round.

PARKS SHOOTS 147's

Tied for third with 146's were Willie MacFarlane, of Oak Ridge, N. Y., and Joe Kirkwood, of Glenside, Pa. MacFarlane got his with two rounds of 73; Kirkwood recovered after a dubious 75 to come one under par with 71.

Three players with 147 each were Jack Cuttle, Pocono Manor; Sam M. Parks, Jr., Pittsburgh, and Jack Strew, Naugatuck, Conn. Herman Barron, Port Chester, N. Y., and Jack Forrester, Hackensack, N. J., took 148 each.

Today six of the first eight make the rounds in two three-somes, attracting the largest following.

Metz, Kirkwood and Barron start out together, with Serafin, Parks and Cuttle not far behind.

ELDRED PLAYS MacFARLANE

MacFarlane will be accompanied by Vincent Eldred, of Pittsburgh, the defending champion, who has a 150, and Arthur Lynch, 156.

More than 150 golfers teed off, but only the low 90 and ties are to play today.

Metz, Hollyw'd C.C., Deal, N. J.	70	70—140
Felix Serafin, Scranton	73	72—145
Joe Kirkwood, Glenside, Pa.	75	71—146
Jack Cuttle, Pocono Manor C.C.	72	75—147
S. M. Parks, Jr., Pgh.	71	76—147
Jack Strew, Naugatuck, Conn.	72	75—147
H. Barron, Port Chester, N. Y.	77	71—148
J. Forrester, Hackensack, N. J.	72	76—148
C. Schneider, Melrose C. C.	76	74—150
T. Luther, Val. Hts. C. C. Haz.	78	72—150
Vincen Eldred, Pittsburgh	77	73—150
Al Heron, Reading	77	73—150

The score of other Pittsburgh district players competing were:

Ernie Jacobs, Castle Shannon	74	79—153
Paul Erath, Edgewood	76	82—158
Andy Velican, Nemacolin	76	80—156
J. Capebianco, Aliquippa	77	78—155
W. J. Dible, Edgewood Ama.	108	109—217

CRITZ, RYAN SAVE GIANTS

game—and the Giants, inspired by a commensurate fear, are battling like real fighters who have their backs to the wall.

Paul Waner is trying for a fourth hit in as many times at the plate. He doubles. Traynor's fly to right fails to advance Paul, but Arky Vaughan hits a bounder over second that starts P. Waner plateward. But like a flash, Critz dives and make a circus backhand stop and P. Waner has to scurry back to third. A dazzling play.

SMART DOUBLE PLAY

Gus Suhr is up with his menacing bat and Gus rams a hot liner toward Ryan. Vaughan stays at first to prevent a double play, but Blondy has something different in mind. He drops Suhr's liner intentionally and there is the smart Hughey standing on second for a force play, and Suhr is doubled at first. The inning is over without scoring.

Well, the climax was written in the ninth. Waite Hoyt, the best pitcher of the day, had to bow in defeat as a result of a scratch hit, a low throw by the reliable Suhr and two real singles by Terry and Ott.

Joe Moore, five-hit man of the battle, was the fly in the ointment for Hoyt who had twirled masterly ball after relieving the faltering Swetonic in the fourth. Moore started the night by beating out a grounder on the right of Piet. Critz bunted and Suhr had his ball in plenty of time for a force play; he has made this play times without number, but, alas, he threw low and both runners were safe.

FAILS TO BUNT, HITS

Terry failed in a bunt attempt, but the boss then singled to fill the sacks and Ott came through with a hit that produced two runs. Waite followed through with a great display of pitching to keep further runs away from the plate, but it was curtains for the Buccos just the same. And the Giants had won back their four-game lead. Watson Clark was credited with the victory.

The Bucs had the satisfaction of shelling Hal Schumacher off the mound. They scored four runs off Hal in the third and gave Swetonic a three-run lead. Steve faltered seriously in the fourth when with two out and a runner on the sacks he walked Bell. Bad Man Moore ruined Swetonic for the afternoon with a triple and a single.

A double-header will bring the great series to a close this afternoon. French and Meine will twirl for the Pirates, with Hubbell and Clark due to pitch for the league leaders.

Chilly Sauce

Boss Bill Terry, of the Giants, run his string of consecutive hitting games to 18 when he punched his important single in the ninth.

Terry is not worrying about records, however. He tried to bunt with runners on first and second, but fouled off the ball. Then Manager Terry told Player Terry to smack one and he did.

Speaking of hitting streaks, our own Fred Lindstrom has a dandy in operation. He has batted safely in the last 16 battles, all of which have been played at Forbes Field.

Lindy started his string in the afternoon game of July 4 and hasn't missed fire since then.

BOSTON CLUBS PROVE PUZZLE TO FANS

They offered a sample of what they can do at their best when the Braves blanked the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 0, yesterday on the three-hit pitching of Huck Betts, and the Red Sox whaled Chicago's White Hose, 12 to 2. But when the returns were in, the Nationals were in fifth place, 7½ games behind the league-leading New York Giants, and the Red Sox, in seventh, weren't even in sight of the drawn battle between the Yankees and Washington for the American League lead.

HAL LEE HITS HOMER

Bill Walker gave Betts a close fight for six innings, but the Braves cut loose and ran up all their runs in three frames to finish only a half game behind the Cards. Hal Lee's homer with two on was the big blow of the game. The Red Sox piled up 18 hits, with every man getting his share, while Gorden (Dusty) Rhodes limited the White Sox to six.

Meanwhile, the Yankees and Senators continued their deadlock by winning lopsided victories and the Giants increased their National League margir by taking an exciting game from the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 5, when Mel Ott's single with the bases loaded brought in the tying and winning runs in the ninth.

Starting with Lou Gehrig's eighteenth homer, his first in a month, in the first inning, the Yankees pounded cut a 10-to-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians. Russell Van Atta held Cleveland to three hits until he was rendered hors de combat by Odell Hale's liner in the seventh, then Wilcy Moore finished, giving two more. Van Atta suffered a broken blood vessel in his pitching arm and probably will be out for a couple of weeks.

NATS DEFEAT TIGERS

Earl Whitehill pitched steadily to give Washington a 7-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers, while Buddy Myer's triple with the bases full in the second started the scoring.

Cincinnati moved from eighth place to sixth in the National League with a 2-to-1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers. For the second day in a row, the Reds won in the ninth. Paul Derringer getting the blow that won his own game.

The St. Louis Browns went 12 innings to gain a 6-3 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics when Bruce Campbell started a three-run rally by making his fourth hit after two were out. Max Bishop's homer brought in all the A's runs.

Between Rounds

The Alabama Kid boxes Bruno Sala in the six-round semi-final to the Sammy Slaughter-Jack King battle at the North Braddock Bowl next Thursday night. Al Becker and Harry Jacoby are in the second bout.

Al Quaill boxes Vince Browning in the main bout of a card of amateur bouts to be held in connection with the Islam Grotto fish fry, at Turner Grove, West View, this afternoon. Leo Sweeney meets Johnny Turpak in another feature bout.

It's Charley Baxter against Jimmy Reilly in the 10-round semi-final to the Sunay Jim McVey-Charley Belanger bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, Monday night. Louie Severo, who was to box Baxter, being off the card.

Al Delcherone will make his professional debut against Freddie Jenkins, and Elmer Wilson meets Young Bordell in the two six-rounders at Hickey Park Monday night.

GRAPHIC GOLF

VALUE OF BUNKERS

Bunkers seldom come in for anything except a good deal of abuse in a round of golf. Still they serve advantages that many players never stop to realize. For instance, they make the green stand out boldly in relief and offer a better target for the golfer to aim at. One need only play a course where the traps are few and far between to realize how much difference their absence makes in the matter of shooting definitely at a clearly-defined target. Then, again, the matter of yardage to be covered can be determined by how sizeable they appear, distance being of considerable importance on second shots. In this connection, it might be well to suggest that often on a strange course where one is unacquainted with the actual distance to the green the size of the people around it will help, or, lacking this yardstick of measurement, the size of the flagstick will prove of benefit.

The Chicago Americans, first-half champions of the National Negro League, will be the attraction at Greenlee Field against the Crawfords this afternoon, heading the day's sandlot card. The game is scheduled for 5 o'clock.

Tomorrow the two teams will jump to Cleveland for a pair of games in the old American League ball park.

The teams meet in the fourth and final game of the series at Greenlee Field Monday night, with the game called for 9 o'clock. There will be a meeting of the National Negro League at the offices at Greenlee Field Monday night to rearrange the schedule.

The Iroquois Club will tackle an all-star team made up of players of the Crafton Church League this evening at Crafton.

In the City League competition last evening, the Homewood club defeated the league-leading Books, 5 to 3, at Homewood, and the Dormont aggregation trounced the North Side Cochrans, 13 to 2, on the South Hills field.

The Homestead Grays traveled to Coraopolis and won over the team of that section, 8 to 6. Kidwell, left fielder for the Coraopolis team, was the individual batting star of the fray, hitting a home run and a double.

Long's Sport Comment

Navin has spent as much money as the average magnate for playing material and that the failure to produce an aggressive, winning team is the fault of the manager. Public opinion may force a change at the end of the season, if not before.

Detroit has not been a pennant contender since the departure of Ty Cobb. The Tigers have not won a flag since 1909, and in the meantime every other club in each league except the Browns has finished first at least once.

OUT ON THE Coast they call their new tennis sensation, 18-year-old Donald Budge, another Maury McLoughlin because he has red hair, and another Ellsworth Vines because he likes to play basketball, but the resemblance may not end there. Budge is said to be a real net star in the making and a championship bidder of the future. He is a smart player, less of a slam-bang hitter than the average good junior, and always knows exactly what he is trying to do. He will graduate from high school next year and enter University of California.

Frankie Parker, Budge recalled having met him in Berkeley when he was 15. "I had him 4-1 in the third set," he said, "but missed an easy shot and lost my temper and five games in a row for the match." Coast experts say that nothing like that is likely to happen again in any of Budge's matches.

DESPITE THE CONFIDENT assertion of Jack Lovelock that he could do a mile in 4:06 if he could manage to run a faster third-quarter than he has been turning in, the majority of track followers believe it will be a long, long time before his new world mark of 4:07.6 is lowered.

It is agreed that in any event, there are only three men now in sight, apart from Lovelock himself, who would have a chance. They are Bill Bonthron, who did 4:08.7 in his great race with Lovelock; Glenn Cunningham, who is credited with 4:09.8, and Luigi Buccali, who set an Olympic record of 3:51.2 for 1,500 meters.

TWO MORE OF Duquesne University's athletes have joined the coaching profession, extending the long list of grads following in the footsteps of Elmer F. Layden since that famous former Notre Dame star became director of athletics and head gridiron mentor in 1927. John Sepsi, halfback, will coach football at South Brownsville High School this year, and Richard (Subby) Irwin, basketball guard, has been signed as floor and gridiron mentor by Altoona Catholic High.

John Sepsi

Both of these men graduated last month and will also teach, in addition to their athletic work. Neither was of the flashy type, but both were considered staunch, thorough players and fine students by their coaches. Their immediate success in getting coaching jobs speaks for itself.

EIGHT OTHER FOOTBALL players finished at Duquesne this year, while Irwin and Capt. John (Bunk) McGeever were the only basketball men lost. McGeever, now a life guard at an amusement park swimming pool, will teach at Homestead High School in the fall and it is expected that he will assist Coach Bill Campbell in his floor work. Incidentally, Campbell will have two other former Duke basketeers as aides, since Brud Stephens, former captain, and William (Snabs) Parry also were elected to teaching positions at Homestead High. Getting back to the former Bluff football players, Capt. Paul Abele, of Johnstown, one of the highest ranking scholars ever to graduate from the college of arts and letters, evidently is bent on a coaching career, though it appeared he would avail himself of an opportunity in the profession of mortician shortly after his graduation. When opportunity in the teaching and coaching field knocks, however, Abele will be waiting.

Music in the Air

What with the Lewisohn Stadium, Robin Hood Dell and Hollywood Bowl concerts, Saturday night has become something of a music lover's dish.

Tonight's Philharmonic program from the Stadium, carried by KDKA at 8:30, spots Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Russian Easter;" "Death and Transfiguration," by Strauss; Elgar's majestic "Pomp and Circumstance," and for the first time in the Lewisohn repertoire, Haydn's Symphony No. 39.

It's all-Beethoven for the Philadelphia Orchestra's Dell bill, comprised of the dramatic "Egmont" Overture and the Symphony No. 7 in A major . . . WJAS at 8:30.

Verdi's "Requiem," done by a symphony orchestra and a chorus of 300 under the direction of Father Finn, leader of New York's Paulist Choir, is the West Coast presentation, listed at 12:15 a. m. on WCAE.

From the Century of Progress Exposition comes a 30-minute afternoon concert—via KDKA at 4—by the 40-voiced Swedish Choral Society under William Nordin.

Sea Thriller

German sea raiders waiting in a South American port for supplies. . . . Word of a secret descent on the port in overwhelming numbers and strength by a British fleet . . . A warning flashed to the Germans by an intelligence agent posing as a beachcomber. . . . Escape . . . That is the theme of tonight's K-7 story, dramatized over WCAE at 9:30 p. m.

Harry Horlick has augmented his Gypsy orchestra to 52 men because he has been booked for a number of symphonic recitals at the World's Fair, which recalls that Buddy Wagner's band has been selected as one of four to be heard over World's Fair loudspeakers which have a range of 10 miles.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

"What a relief it is that Wiley Post is out of Siberia. I don't have to hear you struggle with those Russian towns," writes J. F.

It's unanimous as far as I'm concerned. Those Siberian syllables were no picnic.

Someone else thinks it is "just fine" the easy way I pronounce them. My conscience forces me to admit that in many cases it's just a deep breath, a quick start, a blind plunge, then a sigh of relief.

It's the same "do or die" spirit exhibited by little Jimmie Walsh, who, hearing so much about these ocean fliers, fixed his scooter with wings and forcefully pedaled himself down a steep hill. So confident was he that he would rise, he neglected to bother about the obstruction at the foot of the incline.

The nearest he came to flying was the nose dive.

Brisbane, Hill Popular On Air

By AIRCASTER

Pithy paragraphs from Radio Row—

The noted editor, whose "Today" column is a daily and Sunday feature on page 1, has consented to continue broadcasting on that Sunday night program up to and including August 8, instead of signing off July 30, as he first planned.

Mr. Hill, whose "Human Side of the News" daily graces the editorial page, quits the air for the summer July 30, but returns in the spot formerly held by Singin' Sam, who will probably draw an afternoon assignment.

A chuckle at the expense of the Radio Corporation: Always first with the sales slogan, "A radio in every office," they went and forgot to provide the new building in Radio City with radio facilities.

The next "sensational" gimmick to be attached to radio receivers, and O. H. Caldwell, the technical wiz, really means it, will be a buzzer or bell, which can be sounded by a flutter current, at will, from the transmitting station, to wake listeners out of their lethargy, apathy or whatnot, when something important is about to be mentioned.

It is interesting to note that Walter Kelly leaves the Sunday night show at NBC tomorrow; that the Goodman Orchestra and the Revellers have been signed again for 17 weeks.

In case the customers haven't noticed, Amos 'n' Andy are again riding the peak, with their taxicab trip to the World's Fair and are more than making up for that boner they pulled July 4, when they offended all Canada with their talk on war debts—a bad break that nearly closed up the Canadian distribution points for their employer.

The Voice of Experience is ill—the insurance companies, he writes me, have turned him down as a bad risk. So he's off the air for the summer.

BUSINESS

Roosevelt Turns Cold Shoulder to Stock Market Traders

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

ALL EYES TURNED to Washington last night for word of encouragement following the sudden break in stock and commodity prices. Washington answered:

"It's your funeral."

President Roosevelt made it known through press sources that he is interested in providing jobs for the unemployed and more money for those who have jobs. If some individuals want to speculate on the effects of this new deal that is their concern. If they get burned they have no business coming to Mamma Roosevelt to get their fingers kissed.

In short the policy of the present administration is to discourage speculation in securities and commodities. The administration recognizes the fact that an inflationary policy is naturally tied up with higher levels for stocks and commodities. But if speculators choose to become over-enthusiastic and to get ahead of the administration's program there will be no one to feel sorry for them but themselves.

New President Changes Policy

COOLIDGE AND HOOVER were concerned about the stock market. Every time stocks got the jitters Coolidge made a statement and gave them a boost. Hoover tried the same tactics until he found that every bullish declaration resulted in a sharp break.

President Roosevelt is interested in fundamentals. He knows that you cannot make stocks go up unless business is enjoying genuine prosperity. He knows that business cannot enjoy genuine prosperity unless the clerk and the mill-hand are getting a full week's work at a decent wage. He knows that, if the clerk and the mill-hand are getting this, business will be good and the stock market will take care of itself with occasional burnings for those who are over-enthusiastic.

No Easy Way To Make Money

THE STOCK MARKET has been credited with teaching many lessons. Actual events indicate that it teaches no lessons. But if the events of the las two days had taught a lesson it would be that it can never be too easy to make money. It has been too easy to make money for the last three months. It was so easy that a severe break became inevitable to show amateur speculators that no one really makes money in stocks except at someone else's expense.

To a certain extent the Roosevelt administration has guaranteed a rising market for stocks and for commodities. Such a rising market would be inevitable under inflation conditions. But it must be remembered that the art of speculation is based on the anticipation of events not on actual events. It must be remembered that over anticipation means losses. President Roosevelt is attempting to provide business insurance, not insurance against over anticipation of his recovery moves.

'Love That Lived' Stars Rawlinson

MARKET SLUMP HELD PARTLY 'MANAGED'

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, July 22.—The stock market was in part "a managed reaction."

For more than a week, the powers that be in Wall street were worried over the recurrence of the gambling spirit. In conversations among bank and stock exchange officials, the thought developed that perhaps the brakes should be applied in the form of making credit for speculative purposes a little more difficult to obtain.

Mr. Rukeyser

In the new bull market, brokers and bankers made the pyrotechnics feasible by handing out credit freely in accordance with the spirit of the old regime.

FROWNED ON SYSTEM

There have been indications that the "new deal" administration did not look with favor on the system.

Among the more enlightened financial leaders, there is a recognition that continuing institutions must justify themselves by demonstrating their social usefulness. There can be no doubt of the public need for an open market place for securities as long as private capitalism endures. The point of issue centers around marginal speculation. A reform bloc looks askance at trading on any accept a cash basis. Likewise, this group thinks that banks should place depositors' funds in rediscountable and hence liquid loans only. They would confine more venturesome bank operations to the capital funds of the institution, which, under such a proposed "new deal" would have to be greatly enlarged.

UNIONS' PLACE FOGGED

The place of the labor union under the new industrial recovery setup is not quite clear. The act gives lip service to collective bargaining, yet the initial opposition of organized labor to the proposal of a minimum wage is significant.

If by agreement employers raise wages and curtail hours of employment, they grant the objectives which the unions were created to fight for.

Some advanced employers believe that by shortening hours and raising wage and living standards, they will make old-fashioned unions seem unnecessary.

TEST OF FUTURE

Apart from individual predilections, a real test of management in the future will be in the ability to inspire men to become more productive. To the extent that union rules interfere, management will have to convert employes to the view that it is harmful to perpetuate artificial barriers to efficiency, in which all can share. Doubtless some will again push forward the scheme of company unions.

The speculative idea that economic progress on this side inheres in a continuous and unlimited depreciation of the dollar seems fallacious. The initial depreciation under the new monetary policy was helpful in reversing the downward price trend, and in lifting business off the dead center. Once this has been accomplished, the momentum of recovery came to rely on other factors, such as rehabilitating the purchasing power of farmers and reabsorbing the unemployed back into productive industry.

STEEL OUTPUT ON SEASONAL PLATEAU

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel production delayed leveling off after its phenomenal rise longer than might have been expected, but has now reached the point. Output of ingots this week may be estimated at 59 per cent of capacity against 58 per cent last week. No material decrease is to be expected until three or four weeks hence.

Since late May production has increased by one-half. Prior to that time stocks were being replenished in harmony with the larger volume of business being done and the prospects of further improvement so that there was no great lack of alignment even though ultimate consumption was less than production for much replenishment was needed.

In the eight weeks during which production has increased by one-half, however, there has been much stocking of a temporary character, due not to the increased volume of turnover or prospects, but to advances in prices and increases in cost of consuming steel. Mills entered July with a large tonnage of shipping orders, placed at prices expiring June 30, while in some classes of business orders could still be placed at prices not good after July 31, the result being additional business. In cases where full advanced prices must now be paid there is little buying, but there is enough to test prices and to show that some buyers are not fully covered.

AUGUST DIP EXPECTED

The mills are thus wound up to run at approximately the present rate until about the middle of August, whereupon a downturn should be expected. Ultimate consumption should increase meanwhile, except in the automobile industry, but by an amount quite insufficient to offset the decrease due to completion of orders which are sometimes called "speculative," although as a matter of fact they were merely in anticipation of developments, in prices and costs, it was known perfectly well would occur.

Apart from the slow further increase in general consumption which seems altogether likely, there are two or three special lines which eventually will provide important tonnages, but the time element enters and they may not begin taking up the slack until there has been a marked dip in the steel producing rate. The three items refer to building, the railroads and pipe lines.

PRODUCTION AT '30 RATE

The federal building program will scarcely begin providing much steel tonnage in less than 60 days or so, for the early projects are small and involve little steel proportionate to the expenditure.

Repairs to rolling stock may begin on a fair sized scale at almost any time and will involve substantial tonnages. Building of cars and locomotives would naturally come later and financing would have to become possible. Equipment trusts would be the first thing railroads could sell.

The break in securities this week has not increased the chances of its being possible to finance any pipe lines for laying this year, but the item is not out of the picture.

The excess of steel production over actual ultimate consumption should be fully grasped, to avoid sudden disillusionment. Production of ingots last week and this has been at a rate of about 40,000,000 tons a year, or slightly in excess of actual production in 1930 and 88 per cent of average production in the very active period of seven years ending in 1929.

WORKING ON CODE

No one can blink the fact that conditions are not what they were in 1930 or in the seven-year period. Even automobile production, despite its unexpectedly good showing lately, is off from then. Building, the railroads and the oil and gas industry have been doing almost nothing against much formerly and general line, or miscellaneous, consumption must be off from the average of the seven-year period.

Members of the steel trade have been very busy preparing data and arguments for the hearing on the industry's code of fair competition as big issues must be settled then, and have been giving little attention to current steel market conditions.

After moving slowly upward for three weeks, heavy melting steel scrap jumped a dollar a ton early this week, a mill making several purchases at $13.50, and it is doubtful whether additional material could be secured at the figure. The market has merely been getting in line with markets in other districts.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, July 22.—(AP)—The total this week at all leading cities in the United States, as reported by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., of $5,564,274,000 was 35.5 per cent higher than that of a year ago. At New York City, clearings were $3,988,906,000, an increase of 44.5 per cent, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York of $1,575,318,000 was 11.9 per cent higher.

Outside of New York, 16 cities reported gains, notably Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Atlanta and Louisville. Losses appear at Baltimore, Detroit and Cleveland, although they are much below last week's losses.

This week's clearings exceeded those of last week by $210,010,000. Figures at leading centers, showing increases and decreases as compared with those of last year, are printed herewith. Also daily bank clearings each month for the year to date.

STOCK MARKET RISES, TURNS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, July 22.—Stocks jumped about spasmodically today. After moving up 1 to more than 3 points at the opening, a number of pivotal issues lost an equivalent amount. Breaches of a point or so betwen transactions were common. "Repeal" shares were narrowly irregular.

Western Union alternated between a 3 point advance and a similar recession. American Telephone and Allied Chemical were heavy. Early gains of a point or more were cancelled in New York Central, General Motors, American Can, U. S. Steel, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and American Smelting. Celanese, American Sugar and Commercial Solvents were higher. Homestake rose 5 points.

The conference scheduled for Monday by the Farm Adjustment Administrator, which will bring together executives of 15 grain trade organizations, is expected to indicate something of the type of formula which Washington has in mind to curb excessive speculative fluctuations.

In the meantime the business and commercial reviews of the weekend were generally optimistic in tone. At the same time, however, they called attention to the inherent danger involved in the recent gyrations in prices. Wholesale prices for the week ended July 15, as measured by the index number of the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor, stood at 68.9, as compared with 67.2 for the preceding week. The July 15 figure is the highest reached this year, and compares with a low of 59.6 in the week of March 4.

Foreign exchanges showed a mixed trend in early dealings. Sterling opened at $4.68^3/_8$, a decline of 3/4 of a cent, while French francs stood at 5.48 cents, a decline of .35 of a cent.

COTTON PRICES FLUCTUATE

NEW YORK, July 22.—Cotton futures opened steady, 13 to 37 points advance in response to higher Liverpool cables and on foreign and trade buying. July, unquoted; October, 10.39; December, 10.50; January, 10.78; March, 10.81; May, 11.17.

After selling up to 10.67 for December, the market met renewed liquidation, making net declines of 40 to 46 points on the active positions.

Later the market again rallied with December selling up to 10.34 and active months showing net losses of about 12 to 18 points.

LIVERPOOL, July 22.—Cotton—Receipts, 8,000 bales, including 4,500 American. Spot, moderate business done; prices 11 points lower; quotations in pence. American strict good middling, 6.87; good middling, 6.57; strict middling, 6.27; middling, 6.12; strict low middling, 5.97; low middling, 5.77; strict good ordinary, 5.57; good ordinary, 5.27. Futures closed very steady: July, 5.89; October, 5.93; December, 5.96; January, 5.97; March, 6.01; May, 6.05.

WINNIPEG GRAIN PRICES DROP

WINNIPEG, Man., July 22.—Plunging downward, wheat prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange opened $11^1/_4$ cents lower today.

Annalist's Index At Two-Year Top

NEW YORK, July 22.—The annalist's preliminary index of business activity for June is 76 as compared with 66.8 for May, 57.4 for April and 52.9 for March. The figure is now the highest since July, 1931. Last month's widest gain on a weighted basis was in cotton consumption, but freight car loadings, steel ingot production and electric power output contributed heavily to the rise.

Writers Lay Disturbance To Speculation

NEW YORK, July 22.—(AP.)—Here is what financial writers in New York papers say about the stock and grain market situation:

M. S. RUKEYSER in New York American—"Among the more enlightened financial leaders, there is a recognition that continuing institutions must justify themselves by demonstrating their social usefulness. There can be no doubt of the public need for an open market place for securities as long as private capitalism endures. The point of issue centers around marginal speculation. A reform bloc looks askance at trading on any except a cash basis. Likewise, this group thinks that banks should place depositors' funds in rediscountable and hence liquid loans only. They would confine more venturesome bank operations to the capital funds of the institution, which under such a proposed 'new deal' would have to be greatly enlarged."

RALPH HENDERSHOT in New York World Telegram—"Those who were wondering if, how and when excessive speculation in the stock market would be halted need have no further concern over that score. It is safe to say that wild speculation is over, for the time being at least, although there is no reason to believe that normal risks will not be taken again, as usual, as soon as the skies clear."

CARLTON A. SHIVELY in New York Sun—"Too many people were borrowing money to buy stocks simply because those stocks (and commodities as well) were being whooped along, and wolves as well as lambs fancied they could make and take their profits before the others were ready to do so. When this country abandoned the gold dollar, and when the world was assured that our policy was one of depreciated currency, the gates were thrown open for the speculator."

RALPH WEST ROBEY in copyrighted article in New York Evening Post—"Most people have been fully aware that the stock and commodity market advances were one of the most spectacular and positive phases of the New Roosevelt prosperity. They have known too that the stock market has moved ahead more rapidly than such business improvement as we have had so far justifies . . Speculation unquestionably was getting out of bounds and if permitted to continue would result only in a collapse which would shake the 'new deal' to its very foundation."

FREIGHT RATE CUT SEEN

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP.)—Railroad freight rates, a large item in the cost of living, appeared certain today to be reduced on September 30 around $100,000,000 a year for the country as a whole.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has dismissed appeals of carriers serving North and South Dakota from refusals of state commissions to approve increases in intrastate rates. At the same time it became known that seven railroads serving Oklahoma have withdrawn a plea for federal interference in that state.

The Federal Rail Tribunal has been considering whether to order a general decrease in basic freight rates throughout the country. Several weeks ago the commission took under consideration an appeal of farm organizations and producers of basic commodities for a general rate cut in line with current economic conditions.

None of the commission officials would discuss the situation today, but from other quarters it became known that members of the commission hope to have the decision ready for release by August 1.

CHRYSLER PAY RAISED 10%

NEW YORK, July 22.—(AP.)—Affecting some 45,000 persons, the Chrysler Corporation announced a 10 per cent wage increase for all employes in the United States, effective with the current pay period.

Walter P. Chrysler, announcing the wage increase, said:

"The purpose of this action is to put into effect immediately the most important part of the government's recovery program without waiting upon the adoption of an industry code.

"Effective July 31, the corporation will have completed and put into operation in all its Detroit plants a program of shorter hours upon which the management has been working several months."

The announcement did not say if the increase was a restoration of a previous slash in pay.

Youngstown Sheet Deficit Reduced

NEW YORK, July 22.—The Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company will show a substantial reduction in its net loss for the June quarter. Net loss after all charges should be well under $2,000,000, compared to net loss of $3,057,726 in the first quarter of this year and net loss of $3,288,861 in the June quarter of 1932.

and on Lemon way at a point eighty feet (80') east of the easterly line of Smithfield street, all in the First Ward, City of Pittsburgh. The tunnels shall be used exclusively for the purpose of foot traffic and transportation of merchandise.

The foregoing tunnels shall be laid in the location and in full conformance with the plans on file in the Division of Public Utilities, Bureau of Highways and Sewers, Department of Public Works, and identified as Accession No. B 405, Folder "B," said plan being entitled "Plan of Proposed Tunnels under and across Diamond street, Cherry way and Lemon way, in the First Ward, City of Pittsburgh, for the Investment Land Company."

SECTION 2. The construction, maintenance and use of said tunnels shall be at all times at the sole expense of the Investment Land Company, subject to the approval of the Director of the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The rights and privileges herein granted shall be subject and subordinate to the rights of the City of Pittsburgh and its powers over city streets and ways, and to the ordinances of the said city relating thereto, and to the provisions of any general ordinance which may hereafter be passed relating to the construction, operation and maintenance of overhead and underground structures on city streets and ways and compensation for same.

SECTION 4. The said grantees shall be liable for all damages to persons or property, including the street and subsurface structures therein by reason of the construction, maintenance and use of said tunnels.

SECTION 5. The said grantees shall, at their own cost and expense, repair and replace all street pavement, sidewalk, sewer and water lines, surface and subsurface structures, which may be relocated or in any way damaged or disturbed in the construction, maintenance and use of the said tunnels, all of which work shall be shown on a detailed plan to be submitted subject to the approval and supervision of the Director of the Department of Public Works of the said city.

SECTION 6. The rights and privileges granted by this ordinance are granted upon the express condition that the City of Pittsburgh without liability reserves the right to cause the removal of said tunnels upon giving six months' notice through the proper officers or by resolution or ordinance of Council to the said Investment Land Company.

SECTION 7. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

NO. 176

AN ORDINANCE—Granting unto Elizabeth D. Brereton and Kate McKnight Elderkin, their heirs and assigns, the right to construct, maintain and use a switch track on Spruce way, from the southerly side of Thirty-fifth street to a point 266 feet north thereof, said track to be connected with a track on Spruce way at Thirty-fifth street owned by the Allegheny Valley Railroad Company.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Elizabeth D. Brereton and Kath McKnight Elderkin, their heirs and assigns, be and they are hereby given the right and authority, at their own cost and expense, to construct, maintain and use a switch track on Spruce way, commencing at the southerly line of Thirty-fifth street and extending northwardly along Spruce way a distance of 266 feet, said track to be connected to a track now located on Spruce way owned by the Allegheny Valley Railroad Company, the present northerly terminus of which is at the southerly side of Thirty-fifth street, said track to be used for the purpose of conveying materials, etc.

The said track shall be constructed in accordance with the provisions of this ordinance and in accordance with a certain plan on file in the office of the Division of Public Utilities, Bureau of Highways and Sewers, Department of Public Works, entitled "Proposed Switch Track on Spruce Way, Accession No. 407, Folder No. B."

SECTION 2. The said Elizabeth D. Brereton and Kate McKnight Elderkin, prior to the beginning of construction of the track, shall submit to the Director of the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh a complete set of plans showing location and all details for the construction of the said track, and said plans and the construction of the track shall be subject to the approval and supervision of the Director of the Department of Public Works.

SECTION 3. The rights and privileges herein granted shall be subject and subordinate to the rights of the City of Pittsburgh and its powers over city streets, and to the ordinances of the City of Pittsburgh relating thereto, and to the provisions of any general ordinance which may hereafter be passed relating to the construction, maintenance and use of tracks on city streets and compensation for same.

SECTION 4. The said Elizabeth D. Brereton and Kate McKnight Elderkin shall bear the full cost and expense of the repaving and repair of the street pavement damaged, repair of sewers, water lines and other surface and subsurface structures which may be in any way damaged or disturbed by reason of the construction, maintenance and use of the said track. All of the said work, including the repaving of the street damaged, shall be done in the manner and at such times as the Director may order, and shall be subject to his approval and supervision.

SECTION 5. The rights and privileges granted by this ordinance are granted upon the express condition that the City of Pittsburgh without liability reserves the right to cause the removal of the said track upon giving (6) months' notice through the proper officers pursuant to resolution or ordinance of Council to the said Elizabeth D. Brereton and Kate McKnight Elderkin, their heirs and assigns, to that effect; and that the said grantees shall, when so notified at the expiration of the said six months, forthwith remove the said track and replace the street to its original condition at their own cost and expense.

SECTION 6. The said grantees shall assume any liability of the City of Pittsburgh for damages to persons and property, including the street and subsurface structures therein by reason of the construction, maintenance and use of the said track, and it is a condition of this grant that the City of Pittsburgh assumes no liability to either persons or property on account of this grant.

SECTION 7. The foregoing rights and privileges are granted subject to the following conditions, to-wit: This ordinance shall become null and void unless within thirty (30) days after its passage and approval the said Elizabeth D. Brereton and Kate McKnight Elderkin shall file with the City Controller their certificate of acceptance, under seal, of the provisions hereof.

SECTION 8. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

Passed in Council July 14, 1933.
Approved July 18, 1933.

NO. 177

AN ORDINANCE—Fixing and re-fixing the width and position of the roadway and sidewalks, providing for slopes, parking, retaining walls and steps and establishing and re-establishing the grade of Dawn avenue, from West Liberty avenue to Waltham street.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the width and position of the roadway and sidewalks and the grade of the westerly and southerly curb line of Dawn avenue, from West Liberty avenue to Waltham street shall be and the same are hereby fixed and re-fixed, established and re-established as follows, to-wit:

The following described westerly and southerly curb line shall be used as a reference line for the purpose of this ordinance.

Beginning on the westerly curb line of West Liberty avenue at a point 1.0 foot north of the first point of tangent in the same south of Hargrove street, thence extending north 46 degrees 51 minutes 20 seconds west 10.0 feet to a point of curve, said point of curve being radially opposite and 6.0 feet north of the intersection of the westerly line of West Liberty avenue and the southerly line of Dawn avenue as opened by Ordinance No. 374 approved September 20, 1916, thence westwardly and northwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 44.96 feet and a central angle of 44 degrees 03 minutes 15 seconds for an arc distance of 34.57 feet to a point of tangent, thence by tar distance of 24.0 feet west of the east perdicular distance of 24.0 feet west of the easterly line of Dawn avenue as opened by the above mentioned ordinance, north 2 degrees 48 minutes 05 seconds west 165.96 feet to a point of curve; thence northwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 200.0 feet and a central angle of 21 degrees 24 minutes 25 seconds for an arc distance of 74.72 feet to a point of tangent, thence by the tangent parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 24.0 feet west of the easterly line of Dawn avenue as opened by the above mentioned ordinance, north 24 degrees 12 minutes 30 seconds west 73.25 feet to a point of curve, thence northwardly and westwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 25.0 feet and a central angle of 75 degrees 03 minutes 30 seconds for an arc distance of 32.75 feet to a point of reverse curve; thence westwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 324.55 feet and a central angle of 41 degrees 37 minutes 00 seconds for an arc distance of 235.73 feet to a point of tangent; thence by the tangent, parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 11.0 feet north of the southerly line, north 57 degrees 39 minutes 00 seconds west 366.24 feet to the easterly 8.0 foot curb line of Waltham street.

The roadway, from West Liberty to a point 69.29 feet west of the westerly curb line of West Liberty avenue, shall have a variable width ranging from 28.0 feet at the former to 18.0 feet at the latter mentioned point and from the latter mentioned point to Waltham street shall have a general width of 18.0 feet. The roadway throughout shall lie along the easterly and northerly side of and contiguous to the above described westerly and southerly curb line.

The remaining portions of the street lying without the lines of the roadway and sidewalks as above described shall be used for slopes, parking, retaining walls and steps.

SECTION 2. The grade of the westerly and southerly curb line shall begin at the westerly curb line of West Liberty avenue at an elevation of 181.24 feet (curb as set); thence shall rise at the rate of 1.0 per cent for a distance of 14.57 feet to a point of curve to an elevation of 181.39 feet; thence by a concave parabolic curve for a distance of 60.0 feet to a point of tangent to an elevation of 184.53 feet; thence shall rise at the rate of 9.50 per cent for a distance of 123.32 feet to a point of curve to an elevation of 196.25 feet; thence by a convex parabolic curve for a distance of 100.0 feet to a point of tangent to an elevation of 201.50 feet; thence shall rise at the rate of 1.0 per cent for a distance of 93.36 feet to a point of curve to an elevation of 202.43 feet; thence by a concave parabolic curve for a distance of 40.0 feet to a point of tangent to an elevation of 205.03 feet feet; thence shall rise at the rate of 12.0 per cent for a distance of 127.54 feet to a point of curve to an elevation of 220.33 feet; thence by a convex parabolic curve for a distance of 240.0 feet to a point of tangent to an elevation of 220.33 feet; thence shall fall at the rate of 12.0 per cent for a distance of 144.43 feet to a point of curve to an elevation of 203.0 feet; thence by a concave parabolic curve for a distance of 50.0 feet to the easterly 8.0 foot curb line of Waltham street to an elevation of 199.40 feet.

SECTION 3. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

BILL NO. 2960.

AN ORDINANCE—Widening Fallowfield avenue, in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Crosby avenue to Catalpa street, and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby, and providing further for the payment of the city's share thereof.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Fallowfield avenue, in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Crosby avenue to Catalpa street, be and the same is hereby widened to a general width of 45 feet by taking for public use for highway purposes the following described property, to-wit,

Beginning at the intersection of the northerly line of Crosby avenue and the westerly line of the Curran-Algeo Plan of Lots of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book, Vol. 22, page 88; thence extending along the northerly line of Crosby avenue north 62 degrees 27 minutes west 47.49 feet to a point of curve; thence northeastwardly by the arc of a circle to the left with a radius of 15 feet and a central angle of 112 degrees 20 minutes for an arc distance of 29.41 feet to a point of tangent; thence by the tangent, parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 43 feet west of the easterly line of Fallowfield avenue, as laid out in the above-mentioned Curran-Algeo Plan of Lots, north 5 degrees 13 minutes east 105.99 feet to the southerly line of an unnamed 11-foot way, now called Catalpa street, as laid out in the West Liberty Plan of Lots No. 3 of record in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County in Plan Book, Vol. 20, Page 118; thence along the southerly line of Catalpa street south 62 degrees 27 minutes east 29.06 feet to the westerly line of the above-mentioned Curran-Algeo Plan of Lots; thence along the westerly line of the Curran-Algeo Plan of Lots south 6 degrees 52 minutes west 126.92 feet to the place of beginning.

SECTION 2. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Fallowfield avenue, in the Nineteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Crosby avenue to Catalpa street, to be widened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this ordinance.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby in accordance with the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same. The city's share thereof shall be chargeable to and payable from Bond Fund No. 293, Street Bonds, 1928.

SECTION 4. That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

NOTICE TO BOROUGH AND TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS

The Primary Notice, published hereunto, is compiled from information furnished by the clerks and secretaries of the Boroughs, Townships and School Districts as prescribed by the Act of 1913, P. L. 719, which directs that on or before the ninth Tuesday preceding the fall primary, said clerks and secretaries shall notify the County Commissioners of all offices for which candidates are to be nominated. ATTORNEY OFF TO MEET AIMEE

LOS ANGELES, July 22.—(AP.)—Laden with trunks containing fashionable wearing apparel for Aimee Semple McPherson, her attorney, Willedd Andrews, left last night by air for Baltimore, where he will meet the evangelist's liner from France Tuesday.

He will give her first hand information on the divorce suit filed against her by David L. Hutton, Jr., whose lusty baritone now rings through theaters instead of Angelus Temple, Mrs. McPherson's four square gospel church here.

A wireless message inquiring about Hutton's success on the vaudeville stage was received today by Miss Harriett Jordan, chief lieutenant of the temple. It also requested Miss Jordan to "please send hats and dresses for landing wear."

CHAPTER IX.

The man with the flashlight shut it off as Kruger struck the floor. It would have been ridiculously easy to fire another shot into the lighted room where Cavanaugh stood stark still—a target that could not be missed. The assassin in the dark, in fact, had begun to level his revolver when one of his companions knocked it aside.

"Don't be a fool!" said one of the men hoarsely.

For men in their positions it was bad technique to commit another murder. Their sole object now was to escape as adroitly as possible. One of them closed the door, leaving Cavanaugh standing alone in the office where a moment before the living Kruger had faced him.

"I'll have to get out of here at once," Cavanaugh said silently to himself, "or I'll be arrested."

In a dazed way he was aware of what had happened. Kruger had burst in upon the scene of crime and his life had paid the penalty. Cavanaugh looked about him. A glittering something on the floor attracted his eye. It was the cheap revolver dropped by Kruger.

There was no belief in his mind that Kruger was merely wounded—alive and still a menace. The single bullet had spoken with the voice of death. Cavanaugh felt this inwardly, knew it to be true beyond peradventure. The word Death rang through his mind like the tolling of a bell. Karl Kruger had gone and taken his sorry tale with him.

Without hurrying Cavanaugh let himself into the outer corridor and closed the door behind him. There in the back part of the theater he could hear dimly the mechanical dialogue of the characters on the screen. The throb of his pulse in his wrist was quite distinct. His heart had a heavy beating that was almost a jar.

PITY AND RELIEF

The remarkable thing was that he had escaped both Kruger's bullet and any implication in the murder. It remained only for him to walk casually back to the box and sit down behind Leni Luneska. He needed no alibi.

If anyone, by chance, should inquire—he had merely been in the forecourt smoking a cigaret. After all, he had had practically nothing to do with Kruger's death. Poor devil!

For an instant Cavanaugh felt a wave of pity for the man, but immediately it was engulfed in a great feeling of relief for Leni's sake. For her the black beast of fear had been killed. It was a good thing, Cavanaugh decided deliberately, that Kruger was dead. By any process of human reasoning, the man had forfeited all right to live.

Thus it came about that Tom Mulrooney encountered — and remembered—the presence of Lucky Cavanaugh in a part of the theater where Cavanaugh had no business to be.

DETECTIVE INQUISITIVE

This was important because Mulrooney was head of the city's detective force. A short, wide-shouldered man with a stubby red mustache and eyes as blue and clear as a child's. Cavanaugh, on his way to Leni Luneska, would have passed the detective with a nonchalant salutation, but Mulrooney, for no apparent reason, insisted upon stopping and shaking hands.

"Well, well Lucky—it's good to see you again," Mulrooney said. "How did they treat you at Caliente?"

"They got everything but my tooth brush, as usual," grinned Cavanaugh.

"That's a smart story and I don't blame you for sticking to it," responded Mulrooney. "You let the mob around this town know you've got any money and they'll bite you to death. How did you like the picture tonight?"

"I'm willing to forgive and forget it."

"Didn't I see you in the box with Leni Luneska?"

"Friend of yours?"

Cavanaugh waited a moment before answering. He thrust his hands into his trouser pockets and stood, tall and athletic, with a small quizzical scowl forming between his brows.

"Certainly, she's a friend of mine," he said with a shadow of irritation. "What's the idea anyway, Mulrooney?"

SUSPICIOUS CHARACTERS

"No idea at all, Lucky," replied Mulrooney easily. "I was just wondering didn't I see you leave the box with Miss Luneska about half an hour ago?"

"I don't know whether you saw it or not," said Cavanaugh, "but that's what happened. We stepped outside for a little fresh air."

Mulrooney nodded. "Sure. The reason I asked you. I wondered if you noticed any suspicious looking characters while you were outside."

"How does a suspicious looking character look?" asked Cavanaugh smiling, his hands still in his pockets.

"I'm not kidding," said the other. "I was talking to Kaufmann and he's all excited because he thinks somebody has broken into the penthouse. He was up there a few minutes ago and he said the window had been jimmied."

"Was anything stolen?"

"That's the funny part," said Mulrooney thoughtfully. "It looks like somebody went up there and made himself at home for a little while. Kaufmann is kinda upset about it. A man don't like to have his private quarters entered. Not when there are marks on the window that show a professional jimmy had been used. It's a little bit unpleasant."

Cavanaugh assumed a thoughtful expression.

"Tell you what I'll do, Mulrooney. I'll think it over and if I can solve the mystery for you I'll do it. Of course I'm not a professional detective like you are—"

"Oh, don't bother too much about it," said Mulrooney, with half a smile under his bristling moustache. "Maybe it wasn't anything serious at all. Probably some couple slipped out of the audience and went up there to spend a little time together—who knows? Myself, I don't take things like that too seriously."

LENI'S HANDKERCHIEF

Cavanaugh shifted on his feet, preparing to go on downstairs. It gave him an obscure sense of discomfort to be standing talking to this detective while Karl Kruger's dead body lay not more than 50 feet distant.

"Going back to the box?" asked Mulrooney.

"I just found this ladies' handkerchief up in Kaufmann's penthouse," he said. "It scented up with an awfully nice perfume. When you go back to the box you might give it to Leni Luneska. Maybe it belongs to her. At least it's got her monogram in the corner."

Cavanaugh's face did not change expression. "Thanks, Mulrooney," he shaid politely.

"Don't mention it, Lucky," replied the detective. "You seem to be Lucky by name and Lucky by nature. Well, it's a great old world, ain't it? Romance and everything. There's only one thing that bothers me though—"

"You shouldn't let anything bother you," Cavanaugh remarked.

"I don't, usually," Tom Mulrooney told him. "But when people use jimmies on other folks' property it worries me just a little. If I find out anything more about that jimmy I'll let you know, Lucky."

"I'd appreciate it if you would," returned Lucky Cavanaugh courteously as he turned and went down the stairs, leaving Mulrooney standing where he was.

ROBBERS LEAVE OFFICE

Mulrooney and Cavanaugh as they talked had not been unobserved.

Three men dressed as ushers and carrying packages had emerged from a nearby office—had given quick glances at the detective and Lucky Cavanaugh, and then moved unhurriedly in the opposite direction. Their evening had been a complete success, marred only by the incident of murdering a negligible human being. A superhuman detective might have spotted them and arrested them but Tom Mulrooney was not the type for such startling achievement. He was merely a middle-aged man in a gray worsted suit, plodding through the routine of perfunctory duties.

Besides, he had not as yet discovered that a safe had been blown and an unidentified man killed practically under his nose.

Cavanaugh, as he made his way down to Leni's box, tried to dismiss Mulrooney from his mind. Nevertheless, he realized quite clearly that he was in a spot.

As soon as the robbery and murder came to light, Mulrooney would invariably remember Cavanaugh's wandering around near the scene. There was that matter of the jimmy, too. This was not, of course, evidence enough to connect him with the crimes, but it might require some difficult explaining. Leni might become involved should Kruger's identity come out.

This was not the first time in his life that he had been in a tight place. Brushing shoulders with the police was not exactly a novelty. Yet he did not find it necessary to relax his easy politeness or his habitual smile of good-natured cynicism. This was the first time, however, when his affections were ever tied up with anything resembling danger. More than anything else, he was acutely conscious of an odd, aching regard for Leni Luneska.

In some strange way it had come about that he was responsible for her happiness.

Synopsis

SIMPLE APPLIQUE IS POPULAR

By LAURA WHEELER

Applique flowers are the accepted decoration not only on household accessories, but on many such personal things as aprons, scarfs and dresses. Pattern No. 416 offers six applique flower sprays that range in size from 4¼ to 10 inches. Their variety in design and size makes them practical for use on pillows for the sunporch, scarfs for the breakfast nook, decoration on the living room curtains, or the skirt of a dainty dressing table, as well as on smaller articles such as towels and handkerchief cases. The pattern includes an actual size illustration of each spray that is a guide for assembling the pieces, as well as the pattern pieces for each motif and full directions for doing applique.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Notice that each coupon has a number. Number one and number two are printed today to get you started. Number three will be printed Monday.

ANY THREE OF THESE COUPONS, EACH HAVING A DIFFERENT NUMBER, WILL BE EXCHANGED FOR A STRIP OF EIGHT TICKETS GOOD FOR THE AMUSEMENTS AT WEST VIEW PARK THE DAY OF THE JUNIOR PATROL PICNIC.

Yep, it's true, fellows. We mean it. Free tickets in exchange for the coupons printed right here every day until the day of the picnic.

Start saving them now. Any three with different numbers on each gets a strip of free tickets. But remember, they will be exchanged only by mail. And only Junior Patrol members, whose membership cards are on file here at headquarters, can get them. BE SURE your member number is on each coupon before you mail it in. Just copy it right off your membership card.

No fooling, we would like to have every member of the Junior Patrol, and all the Captains together with their patrols, in West View Park the day of our picnic. Today, now, you can cut out two of the three coupons you need to get a strip of tickets. The third will be published Monday.

Patronage in the Good Old Days

Thirty thousand jobs have been ripening on the vine since loyal democracy marched up Pennsylvania avenue last March.

If that had been the Republicans they would have had all the jobs ladled out by April and invented 30,000 more for May.

That's one good thing you can say about the granulated old party. It took care of its own. If you were right on the goose, as we used to say in Kansas around 1850, you got your share of the feathers, one of the eggs and some bacon.

If you voted the G. O. P. straight ducat the world was yours in oiled silk. Nothing was too good for you. Back in our home town in 1906 we had five loyal Republican votes in our shack and no man was an amateur. We could be bought for the entire four years or rented by the day.

In return, we got free mileage on railroads, honorable mention in the precinct police station, delicate little favors from the truant officer and first place in the torchlight processions. Our job was to yell and vote. We soon got hoarse.

After 28 years, in which we skipped almost four generations of gentlemen, we don't think we are blowing a whistle in revealing these sturdy old facts. That's the way it was in those days. In our town you either strung along with the boys or you feasted like the Mahatma.

We piled up some amazing ballotage totals in the corner cigar store. You got a cigar with every vote and every voter had a box of perfectos left over for Christmas. If you were sergeant of a squad of independent voters that qualified you for a government job.

There is no doubt that the Democrats were rushing the same peculiar aid to their party in other and stranger towns.

We figured to allow the opposition to divide our accumulated suffrage by three. And we would still win.

Of course, that was long ago. Things have changed now. We hope.

The Mayoralty Race

Will Republicans Have a Chance for a Clear-Cut Choice?—Comment on Local News.

William P. Witherow's withdrawal from the mayoralty contest reduces the number of conspicuous avowed or potential "independent" candidates for the Republican nomination to three. If they all enter the primary in opposition to Mayor John S. Herron, the "organization" candidate, it is not improbable that the winner of the nomination will fail to receive a majority of the votes.

The best interests of the city and of the Republican party demand that the voters be permitted to make a clear-cut choice in the primary betwen the two schools of political thought represented by the "independents" and the "organization." No such clear-cut choice can be made if the "independents" have three candidates. Two of them should follow Mr. Witherow's unselfish example and withdraw.

*Hotly contested campaigns serve the useful pur*pose of arousing the citizens and inducing them to pay more attention to civic affairs. The campaign has not become very hot as yet because of the division among the "independents." Let the field of candidates for the Republican nomination for Mayor be narrowed down to two fairly well matched contestants, however, and we shall experience a torrid campaign.

Apropos of torridity, the Pittsburgh Railways Company could help to relieve its customers of the discomfort of hot weather by being more careful to open the ventilators of the trolley cars. Patrons need all the air currents they can get on days like these, and the opening of the ventilators would be appreciated, especially by the standing passengers.

*Complaints formerly were made about the diffi*culty in getting the car windows opened on sultry days. Passengers were willing to open them themselves, but often the windows would stick. The railways company attended to that, and complaints are now seldom heard about the windows. But passengers, especially women, hesitate to touch the ventilators; therefore more watchfulness in regulating them should occur.

Analysis of traffic accidents in Pittsburgh in the first six months of this year shows 49 fatalities, as compared with 66 during the same period in 1932. But it is not time to cheer yet. More children were killed and injured than last year, and non-fatal injuries suffered by pedestrians show an increase. Both motorists and those who walk in the streets must learn the lesson of vigilance, eternal vigilance.

*Another cause of accidents, one that seldom fig*ures in the news, has attracted some attention this week—mushball. Several rather well-known persons have had their fingers hurt while playing the popular game. But they would not advocate the abolition of mushball because of their slight mishaps. There is some little risk of injury in every vigorous outdoor sport.

Thomas A. Meryweather, executive director of the Crime Prevention Association of Philadelphia, said something noteworthy about mushball in an address before the Western Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs. The vogue that mushball is enjoying in Pittsburgh will tend to reduce crime, he declared, by furnishing healthful recreation for men and boys who otherwise might get into mischief.

As the landslide against prohibition continues, the importance of early action by the Legislature in preparation for repeal becomes more and more apparent. Attorney General William A. Schnader warns that new legislation must be passed if whisky and other liquors are to be placed under control when the Eighteenth Amendment is erased from the Constitution.

Randolph W. Childs, of Philadelphia, a member of the board of control of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, foresees the unrestricted sale of alcoholic beverages and a general chaotic condition, if the Legislature is still unprepared when the thirty-sixth state certifies that it has voted for repeal.

*Joseph S. Clarke, state commander of the Cru*saders, has asked Gov. Pinchot to call a special session of the Legislature to deal with the problem. Such a session seems inescapable for the General Assembly will not meet in regular session until January, 1935, and prohibition seems certain to be repealed before then. Clear-thinking citizens should give some thought to the question, What kind of liquor regulation shall Pennsylvania have?

The license of a Penn Township beer vender has been revoked because his floor space fell under the 300 square feet required. There are wide differences of opinion as to the wisdom of the various provisions of the new beer bill; but it is well that the law should be enforced. It is to be hoped that with the repeal of prohibition there will be greater respect for all laws.

Arthur J. Farber, director of the beverage tax division of the State Department of Revenue, calls attention to the fact that the beer law has real teeth for the violators of some of its provisions. Using official tax stamps or crowns more than once, or counterfeiting the stamps, calls for a mandatory jail sentence of not less than two years nor more than five. There is no escaping imprisonment by paying a fine.

It is rather incongruous that a man who uses a beer crown twice should have to go to prison for at least two years while persons who cheat at elections in Allegheny County stand a good chance, even after conviction, of going scot free. The remedy for this anomalous situation lies, of course, in putting some teeth in the election laws, too.

The setting of minimum wages for the workers in various industries, by the administration at Washington, raises the question of the amount necessary for maintenance. The American Weekly, to be distributed as a supplement with tomorrow's issue of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, has an amusing article dealing with this problem. It is the story of Lady Langford, wife of an English peer, who is allowed alimony of $2 a week.

Jiggs gets thinking of the good old days of his youth in the installment of "Bringing Up Father" that is to appear in Puck, the Comic Weekly Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, tomorrow. And George McManus's pictures of these old-time scenes will bring happy smiles of reminiscence to all readers who lived in the days of horse cars and fish wagons.

Eliza Recrossing the Ice

By Nelson Harding

The scene has changed. "Eliza" goes
Again across the icy floes;
But she no longer wildly flees
Before the bloodhounds and "Legrees,"

She chases them from cake to cake,
And to the woods they have to take.
She holds the whiphand now; and they
Are fugitives, who run away.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 22.—Purely personal piffle: The peony—"piney" back home—is the most beautiful of all flowers. Nice gesture of that old worldling, Verne Porter: Adopted a motherless month-old-baby. I chewed up and swallowed a piece of tinfoil while Baer was knocking Schmeling out in that round.

Men with jug-handle ears are always nimble minded. For example Will Hays and Sam Hellman. The most colorful figures on Paris boulevards are Americans—E. Berry Wall, Erskine Gwynne, the fashion plate Mrs. Nash, etc., etc. The high hills of Vermont rate highest for what Morley calls "receptive indolence."

The best caricature is Gluyas Williams' of Robert Benchley. The only thing I never forgot in French is: "A la caisse!" Kansas City, for population, has the finest residential sections. San Francisco is the most indifferent city to outside criticisms. Laredo, Tex., the most sensitive. And no wonder!

In hot weather my Boston takes a shower bath with me every morning. And then runs and shakes himself in the best room in the house. I have yet to see Damon Runyon smile. Bob Brinkerhoff took me to sketch at his nude class in the Academie Julien in Paris and I just sat and blushed like a pink-faced boob.

David Warfield still suggests the "Music Master" part off stage. If anyone reads a new book around the house before I get to it, I lose interest. A stingee! Whenever I hear a mooning young writer aching to write something worth while, I think of Bob Davis' query: "Whose while?" After three years I'm tired of cheese for breakfast. Now I'm giving creamed chip beef a gallop.

Of all writing men, Isaac Marcossen looks best in full evening dress. No breakfast is comparable to Sunday morning's. And why is that? Men who sit on pier ends staring touch off blues. I registered in the Kaiser's guest book at Doorn right under O. O. Mack, a newspaperman from Liverpool, England. No city official ever irritated me like New York's present Mayor. And a lot he cares! An early ambition was to run a glittering delicatessen store and wear a white coat with those invariably too long sleeves. Nothing pleases a man more than to be told: "You have gone far."

About the unkindest things said about me were by actors whom I have over-puffed. And the amusing thing is they still flatter me in letters and to my face. Always acting! There's an author, Gove Hambidge. It still strikes me it should be Grove Hambridge. Things like that will keep me awake half the night.

* * *

I often fight off impulse to trip people—Bob Garland, for instance—rushing down theater aisles, and find men whose first name is Arnold invariably interesting. The other night I blundered upon a young couple spooning in my apartment house vestibule. I began tapping my cane as though blind—and think I got away with it. Ring Lardner has written the best American vernacular. Of all odors, fresh baking is most delightful. The first of the so-called celebrities I met in New York was Oscar of the Waldorf. A bonafide relative of the Czar is cataloging my books. He asked to do it for nothing if he could take volumes home to read at night in his hall room. The popular tune haunting me longer than any other is "Some Sunny Day." I never met anyone who did not enjoy Ripley's "Believe It or Not."

* * *

Paul Whiteman deservedly remains king of orchestra leaders. Seems incredible anyone in the movies could be so gloriously glamorous in "Cavalcade" and so vapidly artificial in "Reunion in Vienna" as Diana Wynward. J. P. Morgan is completely deflated for me. There's only one person I somehow slap on the back. That's Mickey Nielan. The most appealing of all traits is gratitude. My only baseball hero is Mike Donlin and a big thrill was when he wrote a fan letter. I stayed in Munich two days longer than intended to get a fill of white sausage.

I wish my friends Adolphe Menjou and Kathryn Carver would do one thing or the other. The Rhine is the most romantic of all rivers to me. I once went back home from the city singing 14 verses of "Frankie and Johnny." But a fellow at the Blazing Stump saloon could sing 63. I like to soak cracker ends in French dressing.

Every October I begin dreading Christmas. After Christmas I begin worrying about the summer vacation, practically spreading my worry over the entire year. Which is the only way I am completely happy.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Where are you, darling?
Was it yesterday you died;
Or have long ages passed
Since you went from my side

How strong life is!
We who have buried
Half our hearts
Must live two lives
In one.

One part of me
Lives here;
Works, plays, loves, laughs
As if it knew
No other life but this.
Yet, all the while,
Unseen by those who watch,
My secret self
Goes groping on your trail;
Goes calling—calling,
Do you ever hear?
Or, hearing, know
How I still love you, dear?

How can I tell you
That our love goes on Unchanged?
How prove to all the world
That love is worth
All that it costs in pain?

Easy enough to raise
A monument to grief.
But how shall one
Build monuments to joy?
Erect a shaft?
To pride and gratitude?
Show, by some symbol
Or heroic act,
All that love meant
In those lost years—and now?

A slab of stone?
No; stone's too cold
And dead.
Your body died,
And, with it, half my heart,
But not one throb
Of our warm love has cooled.
It burns as brightly
As before you passed.
Why mark a living love
With piles of cold, dead stone?
A wreath of flowers?
But funeral flowers are sad.
Cut off, they wither,
And their sweetness fades.

If I should grieve—
Wear withered flowers
On my aching heart—
Then all the world would say,
"She's sorry that she loved.
"She mourns her own lost joy—
"Love spoils a life, sometimes.
"Be careful how you love!"

Cold stones
And faded flowers?
No, such things betray
And shut you out;
Make death seem final;
Seem to say
That love's not worth
The price one has to pay.

Not stones or flowers.
Then what can I do
To show the world, and you,
That love goes on triumphant,
And that love always pays?
DEAR, I CAN LIVE!
OF MY OWN LIFE
I'LL BUILD YOUR MONUMENT!

Poor stuff, my life;
For in myself
I'm neither brave, nor good,
Nor kind, nor wise;
But love can turn
My weakness into strength,
Cleanse me of lies,
And teach me tenderness,
And keep me patient
Through the cruelest pain.
Yes, love can work
That shining miracle—
AND MY STRONG LIFE
SHALL BE YOUR MONUMENT!

Text for Today

Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.—II. Corinthians, vii:1.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

"Snootiness" Is Funny

There is nothing quite so laughable, in this day and land, as what is slangily called "snootiness." Or "high-hat."

Yet, these two do not, as you may suppose, proceed from a sense of superiority, but from "dat ole debbil," the inferiority complex—a most aggravated case of inferiority complex!

A great man or a successful man is one who has made the discovery early in life that the only way to reduce his inferiority complex is by doing something worth while, accomplishing something that will set him up in his own eyes. That is why most important people are so simple and modest.

The snob, on the other hand, is a person who lacks the ability or the energy to do anything worth while, and feels the old I. C. gnawing at his soul. His only way of subduing it is by resorting to "snootiness." And the smaller he can make the other person feel, the larger and more important he becomes in his own eyes.

A beetle feels positively tremendous when it can look down and sneer at an ant—but it would run, if it saw a mouse approaching. It's all a matter of comparison.

There are lots of ways of reducing the inferiority complex. Driving a snappy car has been most effective in doing it for some people, even though the owner didn't know where the money was coming from for the second payment.

And many an ermine coat is merely the overhead for an enlarged inferiority complex, which MUST be tempered by something to flaunt in the faces of "the Joneses."

When a man's wife turns out to be a better business man than he is, he often relieves his sense of failure by assuming a superior and critical attitude toward her, and by receiving all her opinions with uplifted eyebrows and a "snooty" shrug. That sets him right up in his own self-esteem.

That's why "snootiness" is so laughable to those who are big enough to see through and around it. And if, when somebody attempts to high-hat you, you'd just stop to think how horribly he must be suffering from his old I. C., it would rouse nothing in you but pity or amusement.

To Keep Up With the World

Read Every Week the "March of Events,"
A Record of Things Important

A USEFUL publication for men and women of intelligence, wishing to keep abreast of the times is the "March of Events" section published every week with the SUNDAY SUN-TELEGRAPH. The ablest men in public life, Europeans and Americans, scientists, men of large affairs, contribute to it weekly, dealing with important subjects.

For instance in tomorrow's "March of Events" the honorable Claude A. Swanson, Secretary of the Navy, explains in detail just why this country must start out to build "a Navy second to none."

Why we need fighting ships, why we need submarines in which the Navy is "thirty below treaty strength," Secretary Swanson says:

"There is no use having a second-class Navy or a third-class Navy. Unless the Navy is sufficient to take care of our rights and defend them it is a useless expense."

You will find the Secretary's article in the "March of Events" section tomorrow.

Mussolini, whose flying armada has this week concentrated attention on Italy's power, tells in tomorrow's "March of Events" section, his opinion of "world parleys" like the one that has died in London.

Such parleys in Mussolini's opinion "injure the prestige of nations." The London parley is absolutely doomed, and Mussolini is glad of it. His opinion on "too much talk about liberty" is well known. He asks "why burn incense to Democratic equality?"

You will be interested in Mussolini's article in tomorrow's "March of Events."

This nation, cursed with racketeers, gangsters, kidnapers, will be interested in the article by a well-trained American soldier, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, who tells how "the kidnaping racket, sweeping rapidly and steadily across the nation, makes imperative an immediate 'new deal' in our fight against all forms of racketeering."

The kidnaping problem, according to Gen. Butler, can be attended to by the President with the aid of "MODIFIED MARTIAL LAW." Says Butler:

"The President could act now. He is empowered to declare a modified martial law—martial law to supersede civil rights and courts only in racketeering—either throughout the nation or in those particular sections where the kidnapers are most feared."

There would be no need to call out the nation's armed forces, the present machinery to take care of the job.

The order should be:

"Bring in every man with a police or criminal record; every man carrying a gun without a permit."

Every man thus brought in would be put on trial immediately before a provost court and ordered to prove that he has been employed legitimately during the past few years and that the money he has been spending has been acquired legitimately.

"Failure to do that would result in automatic conviction and prompt jailing."

Those that are tired of racketeering and that dislike the kidnaping epidemic will want to read Gen. Butler's article in the "March of Events" section tomorrow.

Other articles of great benefit in the "March of Events" section will interest you.

MANY OF the nation's most amusing writers contribute every week to the "March of Events" section. Will Rogers, O. O. McIntyre, and many others appear in tomorrow's "March of Events" section.

THOSE THAT rebel against the struggle for existence theory will be interested in an article on Prince Kropotkin's book "Mutual Aid a Factor in Evolution" written by Arthur Brisbane.

The Human Side of the News

—Sworn to Free Macedonia—
Terrorism in Japan

By EDWIN C. HILL

NIGHT, with its canopy of stars, in the bleak and forbidding mountains of the Bulgar-Serbian border. Around the red campfire a circle of dark-faced men, booted and spurred, with curved-handled knives thrust into their wide sashes. Horses tethered to the scrubby trees, nickering in nervousness at the animal cries back in the lonely mountains. Sentinels all about, firelight flickering on their bayonets.

The weirdest meeting I have read about in years. It is the Political Murderers in session—the Congress of Political Murderers. Presiding is a young man, barely 35, clean-shaven, dark-eyed and hollow-cheeked, with something about him of the eagle or the mountain hawk. He is dressed in rough homespun, a sheepskin coat, and short boots over his rough, woolen stockings. This beardless ascetic is Ivan Michailov, chief of the Macedonian terrorists in their armed revolt against Jugoslavia.

One by one, the group around the campfire reports to the young chief the tale of knifings and shootings they have accomplished during the year. When all have reported, the Congress finds that it has a record of 180 killings and five kidnapings in the past three years. And there under the stars, in the heart of the mountains, new captains are selected and new killings planned. The Congress adjourns.

Take Oath to Liberate Macedonia

THE "comitajis," they are called these guerilla bands, made up mostly of Bulgarians who are sworn on the Bible, dirk and pistol to an oath of "Liberty or Death." By liberty they mean the liberty of Macedonia, and a new state to be assembled from the pieces of carved-up Macedonia now held by Jugoslavia, Bulgaria, and Greece.

Another result of the Treaty of Versailles and the work of the old gentlemen who thought they could change human nature by making a new map of a very old Europe. Fierce and ruthless they ride on their border raids, these wild comitajis, their one aim to spread terror with fire and sword. They are firebrands scattering sparks in a powder magazine—the powder magazine of the Balkans—and out of that magazine may come, any year, any month, the new war that will draw all Europe into its fatal blast, the final whirlwind of tempestuous fire.

Mysterious Band Menaces Japan

THE secret police of Japan are in deadly struggle today with an extraordinary and mysterious society which, if not curbed, may hurl Japan into war with the Western world. The name of the society is "The Black Dragon." Its purpose is Japanese conquest of all Asia, with Japan as the greatest power the Far East ever saw—greater than the Eastern empire raised by Alexander the Great or Caesar.

It was the Society of the Black Dragon which drew Japan into the war with Russia and the war with China. Utterly ruthless in its methods, it assassinates opponents with the thoroughgoing methods of Chicago and New York gangsters. Throughout Japan is the dread that the machinations of this dreaded organization may bring the death by knife or bullet of high government officials who strive to keep the peace, and who plan the destruction of the Black Dragon.

Slightest Whisper Of Leader Obeyed

AT the head of the society, and the author of secret orders which decreed the murder of ministers of state, is the white-bearded and venerable Mitsuru Toyama, 78 years of age, humble and self-abasing, but a man driven by a relentless ambition to bring about Japanese mastery of the Eastern world.

Thousands of fanatical young men—and young women, too—obey his lightest whisper as if it came from the gods themselves, and do murder at the signal of the lifted finger of this gentle-seeming and placid sage. Only the other day one of his lieutenants, Yoshio Kodama, head of the Loyal Youths' Society, was arrested by the secret police in the grounds of a temple. Knowing he was trapped, he fired dum-dum bullets into his chest.

Mitsuru Toyama's third son, Hidezo, was arrested with copies in his pocket of an order commanding the murder of important personages. But the Japanese newspapers, in apparent terror of the very name of the terrible old man, Mitsuru, printed asterisks instead of his name. He is so powerful and menacing they did not dare to put the name in cold type.
